MONEY FROM WASTE
Electric Light and Power at Trivial Cost

Type H.R. Cold Starter. Sizes 7½ to 280 B.H.P.

A leading garage owner writes:—
"You will be interested to know how pleased I am with the performance of the engine which you supplied me last year. Its economy is wonderful. Since then I have run the engine on waste oil from car engine sumps—I do not even filter this oil, but simply tip it into the engine service tank, and the engine works cleanly and satisfactorily in every way. I am producing a super-abundance of current for lighting and power at a trivial cost, merely for lubricating oil."

You, too, can save your electric light and power bill by installing a Ruston Cold Starting Oil Engine.

Expert engineers ready to report—without charge—on plant most suitable for all requirements.

HAND INJURED IN SAW MILL

CASE REMITTED TO CIRCUIT COURT

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT AND MR JUSTICE HANNA.)

The Court remitted to the Circuit Court for re-hearing a case in which Michael Carey, Grogan, Ballybrophy, had claimed compensation for injury to his hand, suffered while being employed as a sawyer by Russell Brothers, timber merchants, Portarlington, in 1913.

It was stated that after the injury Carey's employers agreed to re-employ him and pay him a nominal weekly sum, and that he was given work until 1931, when he was discharged. In 1933 he applied for arrears of compensation, and an agreement was arrived at whereby he was paid £75. The Circuit Judge, in subsequent proceedings, held that this amount was paid in settlement of all claims by Michael Carey under the Workmen's Compensation Act. The workman then appealed to the High Court from this decision, claiming that the settlement was in respect of arrears only.

The question left by the High Court to the Circuit Court was whether the £75 was accepted by the workman in full discharge of his claims under the Act.

Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., and Mr. J. L. Esmonde (instructed by Mr. L. J. Ryan), appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C., and Mr. F. FitzPatrick (instructed by Mr. R. Rowleston) for the respondents.

MEANING OF CLAUSE IN WILL

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Miss Aylmer, in her will of 10th May, 1928, directed that the income from her residuary estate should be applied by the Representative Body of the Church of Ireland for the benefit of the Donadea parish, and that, in the event of the bequest being rendered inoperative, such residuary estate should be paid to the Archbishop of Dublin, for the time being, of the Church of Ireland.

The value of the residuary estate was said to be close on £40,000.

It was stated that up to 1896 Donadea was a separate parish; that in 1896 it was united with the parish of Kilcock; and that in 1923 that union was dissolved and the parish of Donadea was united with the parish of Clane. The trustees of the will, Herbert Claud Corbally, of Urlingford, Naas, and Allan Aylmer Luxmoore, of Shincliffe, Durham, took out a construction summons for the purpose of having decided by the Court which parish was referred to by Miss Aylmer when she used the words "the Donadea parish," and whether, if the bequest failed, the gift over to the Archbishop of Dublin for the time being took effect.

The defendants in the summons were the Representative Church Body, the Archbishop of Dublin; the Rev. Brian L. Handy, St. Michael's Vicarage, Sallins, representing the parish of Clane and Donadea, and Peter Kidd, Mountarmstrong, Donadea, representing the original parish.

Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. William Roche and Sons) appeared for the trustees of the will; Mr. Price, K.C., and Mr. Poole (instructed by Mr. F. J. W. Darley) for the Representative Church Body; Mr. Carson, K.C., and Mr. Matheson (instructed by Messrs. Malcomson and Law), for the Archbishop of Dublin; Mr. Frank FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. Maurice C. Walker (instructed by Messrs. Darley, Orpen and McGillycuddy) for the Rev. Brian L. Handy; and Mr. Leonard, K.C., and Mr. Budd (instructed by Messrs. Fetherstonhaugh and Carter) for Peter Kidd.

When the case was opened, Mr. Newett said that the Donadea parish and the new union of Clane and Donadea were claiming the bequest, and the trustees wanted the questions asked in the summons determined by the Court, so that, if the Court determined that the gift took effect, they could hand over the residue to the Representative Church Body to carry out the trust

Mr. Price submitted that the union of parishes did not extinguish the existence of the constituent parish in such a union, and that Donadea was a parish within a union, capable of holding endowments.

Mr. FitzGibbon submitted that the primary meaning of the word parish was the administrative organisation of a particular church in a particular geographical area, and that the bequest was for the benefit of whatever parish organisation contained Donadea for the time being. Whether, if that was so, the organisation could use the money in particular ways was a subsidiary question, and he was not prepared to say that it could use it for the exclusive benefit of Clane, or where the dividing line would come in. It was difficult to say, but it would be a matter of very great inconvenience if the Representative Body, in administering the fund, was compelled to keep income which it had on hand for a united parish, ear-marked so as to see that no expenditure ever was made out of it which did not benefit Donadea exclusively.

JUDGE'S QUESTION

Mr. Justice Johnston—The Representative Church Body cannot send a workman to do repairs; they must do it through the Select Vestry, and if that body, representing a whole, united parish, makes a request for funds for the purposes of the united parish, are the Representative Church Body to make enquiries as to what part of the parish the money is to be paid?

Mr. FitzGibbon—That would be a matter of some practical difficulty, because the practice is that where you get a united parish the endowments of each parish are made available for the whole.

It was the united vestry, continued Mr. FitzGibbon, that now ran the amalgamated parish, including Donadea, and, he submitted, so long as the income directly or indirectly kept the common parish going, it benefited Donadea. If it was conceivable that the money could be devoted to some object which would benefit Clane only, then he would have to admit that that would not be a proper use of the fund.

Mr. Leonard contended that the bequest inured for the benefit of the original parish of Donadea as it existed before its association for administrative purposes with Kilcock or Clane, and said that Donadea parish had continued as a separate ecclesiastical entity from before disestablishment down to the present day. He did not argue that the income of the trust fund was applicable to purposes directly beneficial to the original parish exclusively. He admitted that during any period when the original parish was a constituent parish of a union of parishes the income might be applied to any purpose which was beneficial directly or indirectly to the original parish as a constituent parish of the union.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that it seemed to him that there was really nothing between Mr. Leonard and Mr. FitzGibbon, and would it not be possible, he asked, to arrange a declaration with which he could agree, providing that this money should be used for the united parish so long as Donadea continued in its present position and reserve for the future the question of whether the money was intended for Donadea in the event of any change taking place in the present union of the parishes.

Mr. Leonard said that he thought that there would be no difficulty in agreeing to a formula dealing with the application of the income of the trust during the period of the union, but he saw no reason to postpone consideration of the question of what would happen if the union changed, because he could satisfy the court that this bequest was a gift to Donadea parish, and nothing else. There was no doubt that there was a gift for Donadea, and that the gift took effect, and the moment that Mr. FitzGibbon admitted that the bequest followed Donadea into any union into which it might go, that was an end of the argument, because the only question then was did Miss Aylmer mean that this gift was a gift to the original parish or to the united parish. He suggested that the income might, during the union, be spent for any purpose directly or indirectly beneficial to Donadea as a constituent parish of such union. He would be equally satisfied if the Court said that the applicability of the income was not confined to purposes directly beneficial to Donadea exclusively, but there was no reason why the Court should hold that the gift was not a gift to Donadea parish.

ARCHBISHOP'S VIEW

Mr. Carson said that the Archbishop of Dublin did not wish to appear as taking sides in this matter, but he wished him to convey to the Court his view on it, and that view was entirely in harmony with the view which Mr. Leonard had expressed already. It was important that Donadea parish should continue to exist as a separate parish, but during the union of the two parishes of Clane and Donadea the income should be used for the benefit of the two parishes. The Archbishop wished him to state also that he was anxious that if the parish of Donadea became separated from Clane at any future date, then the income from this fund should inure for the benefit of Donadea.

Mr. Justice Johnston—Everybody is agreeing about that.

Mr. Carson—That is all the Archbishop desires. If your lordship would make an order to that effect, that the funds do follow Donadea, no matter what parish Donadea becomes united with——

Mr. Justice Johnston—And in the meanwhile the money should be used for the joint purposes of the two parishes during the union.

Mr. Leonard—Yes.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that it had occurred to him that he should try to frame a declaration that would meet the arguments of the parties, and have it submitted to them, and, if they agreed to it, he could make the declaration instead of giving a reasoned judgment.

Mr. Carson said that he thought that that was what the parties desired.

All the parties agreeing to Mr. Justice Johnston's suggestion, the matter was allowed to stand until the declaration was drafted and submitted to counsel in the case.

RATES ON SMALL DWELLINGS

DUBLIN MAN'S APPEAL DISMISSED

The Court dismissed with costs an appeal by Edward O'Neill, Ulverton road, Dalkey, County Dublin, from a judgment of Mr. Justice Meredith in the High Court, in a suit in which Mr. O'Neill was plaintiff and the defendant was Frederick J. Lyons, rate collector of the City of Cork.

The plaintiff's claim originally was for a declaration that sixteen notices served by the rate collector on plaintiff's agent, William McCoy, under the provisions of the Local Government (Rates on Small Dwellings) Act, 1928, were void. The notices sought to restrain William McCoy from parting with £76, the amount of rents collected by him in respect of small dwellings in Cork, the property of the O'Neill estate, so long as certain rates claimed by the Corporation as due on the dwellings, remained unpaid.

When the case came before Mr. Justice Johnston in the High Court, in 1935, the Judge gave liberty to McCoy, who was then a party to the suit, to lodge the £76 in Court, and dismissed him from the suit. The plaintiff thereupon confined his claim to one for the payment out to him of the sum of £76, and this claim was heard by Mr. Justice Meredith, who ordered that an account be taken of the rents collected by William McCoy, and of the rates due on the premises named in the notices, the validity of which was at issue.

The plaintiff appealed against this order on the grounds that the requirement of the 1928 Act had not been complied with, inasmuch as there was no evidence that William McCoy was "owner," within the meaning of the Act, of the dwellings in question; that particulars of the rates had not been furnished to him, as required by the Act; that the form of the notices used was not that authorised by the Act; and that the defendant had failed in a counter-claim for the amount of the money lodged in Court.

The Supreme Court held that the notices in question were properly served on William McCoy, and that the form of the notices was substantially in compliance with the provisions of the 1928 Act.

Mr. H. J. Moloney, K.C., and Mr. Ashley Powell (instructed by Messrs. MacCarthy, Hanrahan and Moloney), appeared for the appellant; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., Mr R. Brereton Barry, K.C. and Mr. W. O'B. FitzGerald (instructed by Messrs. Barry C. Galvin and Son), for Frederick J. Lyons, the respondent.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

EX-SOLDIER'S HOUSE IN DUBLIN

CASE TO COME INTO HIGH COURT?

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

The Irish Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust was granted an ejectment order against Ml. Holohan, an ex-Serviceman, in respect of the house, 4 Mayfield terrace, Ballinteer, Dundrum, Co. Dublin.

Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Art O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. Reddin and Reddin) appeared for the defendant, and Mr. J. Kelly (instructed by Messrs. J. H. Montgomery and Son) appeared for the Land Trust.

Mr. G. E. Brown, Director of the Land Trust, stated that a case in the High Courts was probable, for the purpose of clearing up the real relations between the Trust and the tenants. One of the questions to be decided was who would be liable for repairs.

Major J. C. Hunt, Inspector of the Trust, said that the defendant had never lived in the house since he took possession in 1933, but Mrs. Holohan and a child had lived there. Holohan went to Liverpool to look for work, and the contention of the Trust was, the witness said, that if a tenant went away he lost his right to the house. At the present time the Trust had 300 names in a selected waiting list for houses.

A stay of execution until December 15th was granted.

POLICEMAN'S PROMISSORY NOTE

INSTALMENT ORDER GRANTED

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Miss Nellie Walsh, Stephen's road, Kilmainham, sued Daniel Joseph Walker, Grosvenor terrace, Dalkey, for £43, being the amount of a promissory note, interest, and costs.

Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solicitor for the defendant, admitted the claim.

In evidence, the defendant said that he was a member of the special branch of the Civic Guards, receiving £3 16s. per week, with a rent allowance of £2 10s. per month. He was married and had one child. The most he could pay was an instalment of 10s. per month.

In reply to Mr. Corbett (instructed by Mr. J. V. Brady), for the plaintiff, Walker stated that Miss Walsh went surety for him in 1933. Prior to that he had been a collector of a friendly society, and when he handed in his book he received nothing for it. He was under heavy expenses as he was living out of the city under a rental of £5 per month. He could not possibly pay 10s. per week as he owed, roughly, another £40.

The Judge, making an order for payment at the rate of £2 per month, said that he was afraid the defendant had been unreasonable, and he could not see why he could not pay 10s. a week.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

BUTTER MIXED WITH MARGARINE

DUBLIN MERCHANT FINED

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

Daniel Dowling, of the Mayo Stores, 134 Capel street, Dublin, was summoned for having on 26th August last sold a pound of butter which was adulterated with about 60 per cent. of margarine; and Patrick Brady, of 49 Bolton street, was summoned for having on the 30th August sold a pound of butter adulterated with 40 per cent. of margarine.

Daniel Dowling said that he had been in business for over fifteen years and this was the first prosecution that had been brought against him. He had in sole charge of the premises a manager, who sometimes did the buying. The witness said that he was unaware of the offence until he got the summons. He always used the utmost care to see that such a thing should not happen.

Mr. T. F. Burke, solicitor, for the Dublin Corporation—Do you know how a mixture of margarine and butter was sold in your shop to a Mr. Patrick Brady?—No.

John Fennell, manager of the Store, said that he accepted full responsibility for the care and management of the store. Receiving butter from many different sources, he could not trace where the particular pound purchased by Inspector Egan, of the Dublin Corporation, had come from.

Patrick Brady said that on 28th August he purchased butter from the Mayo Stores and had not interfered with it in any way.

Helena Purcell, assistant in Mr. Brady's shop, said that the butter which was sold to the inspector was part of what had come from the Mayo Stores.

Mr. P. Cowan, solicitor, for Mr. Brady, said that the interests of justice would be best served by withdrawing the summons in view of the evidence in the two cases.

Mr. Burke agreed, and the summons was withdrawn.

Mr. P. S. Brady, solicitor for Dowling, said it was clear that so far as Mr. Dowling himself was concerned he was innocent of any fraud or misrepresentation.

Mr. Burke said that whether it was as a result of the operations of his employés or whether he had been duped by some country farmer, the mixture was being unloaded on the public. It was a very profitable business to sell articles at a shilling which should only cost sixpence.

Mr. Lennon said that as this was the first offence he would impose what he considered the very moderate fine of £5 on Mr. Dowling.

REMANDED ON LARCENY CHARGE

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Michael Dargan, of Goldenbridge terrace, Dublin, was charged with the larceny of a gold watch valued at £20, with the larceny of a sovereign case valued at £5, and with the larceny of a gold medal valued at £1, the property of the Rev. Dr. Michael O'Donnell, from a hotel in Amiens street.

Detective Sergeant Moran, who, with Detective-Officers Farrelly and Madden, had charge of the case, said that when the accused man, who was a window cleaner, was charged, he said: "The charge is correct. I had drink taken and I am sorry for stealing the articles." The watch and case had been recovered.

The defendant was remanded on independent bail of £10.

UNSOUND MEAT

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

A fine of £3 was imposed on Michael Cooper, North Circular road, Dublin, for having exposed for sale in his shop 7lbs. of beef and 3lbs. of mutton on August 3, the meat being unfit for food.

The defendant said that he had no intention of selling the meat, which was, he admitted, hung up through carelessness. He had had a Corporation contract which had since been taken from him.

DYING MAN'S STATEMENT READ

WAS SHOT IN BED

RECOGNISED MAN'S VOICE

DRAMATIC EVIDENCE IN MURDER TRIAL

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

THE trial of John Hogan (25), farmer, of Donaskeigh, Co. Tipperary, who pleads "not guilty" to a charge of murdering William Hanley (65), a farmer, also of Donaskeigh, entered on its third day of hearing yesterday.

Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) are prosecuting, and Mr. Kingsmill Moore, K.C., and Mr. J. J. Walshe (instructed by Messrs. J. d'Arcy and Co., solicitors (Tipperary), represent the accused man.

Sergeant W. Kelly, Tipperary, who had given evidence on the previous day concerning the arrest of the accused man, was cross-examined by Mr. Kingsmill Moore. In reply to a number of questions he said that with the exception of a footprint found by another guard in the middle of a field adjoining Hogan's house no other marks were discovered, despite the fact that witness had made a d[illegible] search. In going to Hogan's he had approached quietly, and when he peeped through the window he saw the accused man lying on his back in bed. Hogan appeared to be asleep. The accused man showed him the boots he had worn last without any hesitation. They were very wet.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore—They could have been used the previous night for fishing at the river and walking in shallow water?—The wet appeared to have been caused recently.

Did you notice anything else in the cowshed?—Yes, I found a fishing net made of wire (produced).

The witness said that he never had seen anything like the net in his life before. There were sharp edges on it and it would be possible for a person working with it to get scratches on the wrist. The witness said that he found some marks caused by gun shot in the wall of Hanley's bedroom. Their position was such that would suggest that the gun had been fired at random in the air.

FINDS NEAR HOUSE

Sergeant P. Vaughan gave evidence of searching the premises of the Hogan family on August 12. In the cowshed he discovered three pieces of whitish-coloured braid and pieces of old canvas, along with two pieces of barbed wire, one of which had been recently cut. On the following day, in a shed attached to the dwellinghouse, he found a flashlamp without a battery. Subsequently, he tested the lamp with two batteries found by other members of the police, and one of them lit the lamp. On the same day he found parts of a hay kicker, and one of them was of the same length and appearance as the bar found in Hanley's house. He examined all the clothes that he could find in Hogan's house, and found that they were dry. He found also pieces of sacking which bore yellowish brown stains.

In reply to Mr. Kingsmill Moore, the witness agreed that it would not be unusual to find a number of hay kickers of the same make on several farms in a particular locality.

Sergeant Ml. MacEnerney gave evidence of finding three empty cartridge cases in Hogan's house. In a field about 320 yards from Hanley's house he found a footprint, of which he took a cast. On August 14 he found a number of bags sewn together with braid.

FINGER MARKS

Detective Officer Bourke, Tipperary, gave evidence of finding finger marks on the window of the Hanleys' bedroom, which were examined by a fingerprint expert from Dublin. Father Walshe pointed out to witness a bar covered with sacking which was held on by a piece of braid.

Sergeant R. McNamara, fingerprint expert, said that a satisfactory investigation of the marks found on the window could not be made owing to lack of detail.

Detective Sergeant J. Reynolds said that, on the afternoon of August 12, he found a sledge hammer in lands of Hogan's farm standing upright in a bunch of nettles and thistles. It appeared to have been there about twelve or fourteen hours. He examined the cast of footprints and found twelve points of similarity between the cast and the right boot.

FIREARMS CERTIFICATE

Superintendent T. J. O'Sullivan, who is in charge of the area where the occurrence took place, said that on the morning of August 12 he went to Hanley's house, and in consequence of what he heard he continued to Hogan's place. When he arrived he saw Sergeant Kelly and John Hogan. Witness produced a firearms register for the district. It showed that a licence had been issued to John Hogan, Donaskeigh, in respect of a single-barrel shotgun in February last.

Witness said that he brought the accused man to the Tipperary station, and later returned to Hanley's house and carried out an examination there. Mr. and Mrs. Hanley were being attended by Dr. Dowling.

Witness visited William Hanley in St. Joseph's Nursing Home, Tipperary, and was present when a deposition was taken from him there in the presence of the accused man and his solicitor. The deposition was taken at a special court, at which John Hogan was charged with wounding Hanley with intent to murder. In the deposition Hanley said that on the morning of August 12 while in bed with his wife he was wakened by a noise in the room. When he heard the noise he asked what was the matter, and the answer he got was that he was the man they wanted.

STRUCK WITH BAR

"The first thing I got then," proceeded the deposition, "was a strike of a bar on the top of the head. When I spoke, the man said I was the one he wanted. I could not see who spoke. I saw the man in the room and could have him only I got the strike of the bar. I pulled something out of his hand. It was a cord, I think. I saw it afterwards. I gave it to the Guards when they came. I think I felt a gun in the man's hand, and when he fired a shot he said: 'Put up your hands.' I said that surely it was John Hogan that was there, and he wanted to load the gun as he wanted everyone in the house to put up their hands. I went down to the kitchen to get at him, but could not because my leg was stiff. He fired a second shot in the kitchen again; he fired the first shot there in the bedroom. That shot struck me there in the side. I also got some of the shot in the right leg."

The deponant said that after the first shot was fired his daughter came up. He did not see what happened when she came up, as he was in the kitchen and it was dark.

"CAME THROUGH WINDOW"

"I was standing up," he continued. "I went out, determined to get after him, and I called my son to try to identify him, as he was masked. I had to get back into bed. After I got into bed the man went out to the yard, but instead of going away he came back to the bedroom window. He put the gun and his arms in through the window and fired a shot. The shot struck me and struck my wife. We were both in bed, I suppose, when the shot struck us. It struck me in the right leg and struck my wife in the left hand. When the man was in the room he had a flashlamp. I do not identify the man who did all this. I will not tell a lie, but I only suppose by his talk that it was John Hogan. I called out and said 'it was John Hogan.' I took the voice to be that of John Hogan. I did not notice how he was dressed. He had a mask on his face and I saw it was a single-barrelled shotgun he had. I did not see the weapon he struck me with."

The deposition stated that Hanley never at any time saw but the one man. There was only the one man in the room and in the kitchen afterwards. The accused man was a son of a neighbouring farmer—John Hogan, senior—whose land adjoined his. There was some trouble between the two families on account of a boundary fence. There had been legal proceedings. There was no relation between his family and the Hogans so far as he knew.

"It was 4 a.m. in the morning," he continued, "when all was over. I heard the clock strike."

THE ARREST

The witness said that on the death of Hanley he arrested John Hogan at Tipperary Barracks on August 16. When charged and cautioned he replied: "I won't say anything.'

Superintendent D. Stapleton, Gardai ballistic expert, said that on August 12 he received from Sergeant Kelly a single-barrelled breech-loading gun which was in good serviceable condition, the trigger pull being normal at six pounds. He also received a number of spent cartridges for examination. All of them were of .12 bore type, and could be fired from the gun. Tests which he carried out showed that the two empty cartridges found in Hanley's bedroom and that found in the kitchen were fired by the gun produced. Witness examined a number of pellets found in the body of Hanley, which belonged to a number five cartridge.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kingsmill Moore, Superintendent Stapleton said that about 45,000 guns of the type submitted were produced annually since 1896. There were thousands of them in use all over Ireland. Every striker in all the guns of this make had individual characteristics. If nine successive shots were fired from the one gun the impressions on the cartridge cap would be the same.

The case for the prosecution having concluded, the Court adjourned until to-day at 10.30 a.m.

TENDER TOES

ARE YOUR SHOES YOUR FRIENDS?

AN army may, as Napoleon said (or was it Hannibal?), march on its stomach. But I know I march on my two feet. The march, however, soon becomes a shamble or a hop, or a kind of agonising toe-dance, if my shoes are not really comfortable. Observation has made me aware that I am not alone in this peculiarity.

Apart from buying the right kind of shoes for the kind of walking you intend to do, there are various tips for securing a friendly understanding in your shoes. But before I go on to these tips may I remind you that for anything more than walking on and off trams or motors very high heels are not comfortable, and they make most women walk in a fashion it would be flattering to compare to the gait of a duck. In the matter of fastenings, comfort to some extent depends on the shape of your instep—if you have a high instep beware of strap fastenings; if your heel has rather a straight line at the back, laced shoes are likely to stay put more comfortably.

TENDER TOES

If your toes are tender across the top do, I beseech you, make sure when buying "good strong shoes" that there is not a seam over the tender part. Seams that seem (sorry!) quite pliable in the shop often develop implacable rigidity on the street. The only wise thing when this happens is to abandon the shoes unless the shoemaker can really soften the seams. Otherwise you will undoubtedly lay up trouble for yourself in the near future as well as in old age—rheumatism attacks weak spots first! The same warning applies with equal force to buyers of shoes that press persistently on the large joint of the big toe. I have known economical women, who refused to part with such instruments of torture, to be obliged in the end to have an operation to restore shape and mobility to the injured joint.

Now, supposing you have shoes that fit comfortably they will not continue to be comfortable unless you take care of them. They must be either on your foot or on shoe trees, otherwise they will wrinkle across the toes and get loose just below the ankle—both unsightly and uncomfortable effects.

Next, no shoe will be comfortable if you let one side of the heel get noticeably worn down. If you are, like me, one of the unlucky people who wear heels down rapidly at one side, get an insertion of rubber to circumvent the wear. It can be easily renewed when worn, and, in any case, does not wear out nearly so quickly as leather. You may be the more moved to this wisdom if you realise that a down-at-heel woman looks down-at-heel from head to foot.

CARE OF SHOES

Finally, both for comfort and for appearance, see that your shoe leather is kept supple. Patent leather shoes and strong shoes for golf, "hiking," and such enterprises are the most liable to become hard and unyielding.

Patent leather shoes should never be put close to the fire, but should always be slightly warmed before they go on your feet; gentle heat causes the leather to expand without cracking, whereas too much heat stiffens the enamel. An occasional oil bath helps patent shoes to wear better—stand the shoes overnight in a shallow tray with enough olive oil to soak the soles well. The oil will work into the uppers a little, and so much the better; rub on a little more in the morning; leave for an hour or two, then wipe off superfluous oil and rub with a soft rag moistened with vinegar. Then use the cream polish.

No shoes will keep supple if they are not given regular polishing, whether muddy or not. A good polish actually feeds the leather. But, of course, stiffness most often comes from getting shoes thoroughly wet and then drying them the wrong way. If they get wet put them on trees, and dry them in a current of warm air, but not beside the fire. If the leather is dark it is a good plan to give it a dressing of mutton fat while wet: first clean off all mud with a wet cloth, then apply the fat liberally. The process of drying will draw the grease right through the leather, rendering it at once soft and waterproof.

Now for one or two hints concerned solely with the appearance of shoes. Often brown shoes get stained and discoloured. Try painting them with iodine, letting them dry overnight, and then polishing in the usual way. If this seems too drastic a treatment (for it usually darkens the leather), try sponging the shoes with a little warm milk, in which a small piece of washing soda has been dissolved.

When, however, brown shoes have become almost black owing to the caking of wax polishes on the surface, you must give them a drastic rubbing with a rag moistened in petrol (not near a fire or someone with a cigarette, try the garden). When the petrol dries off in a current of air polish as usual.

A GOOD TIP

A good tip for a wet day, if you have leather soles, is to give them a rapid brush over with a little polish—not enough to stay on the surface and make them slippy, but enough to soak in and make the leather waterproof. Also, the leakiest part of a shoe, and the most neglected, is the join between sole and upper. See that this gets filled with polish now and then. Work the polish well in (an old tooth-brush is handy) before brushing it out again.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

MILANESE SOUFFLE

¼ Pint raspberry or strawberry jelly, 2 lemons, 3 eggs, 4 ozs. sugar, ¼ oz. gelatine, 1 small tin unsweetened, condensed milk, whipped cream, and a few chopped pistachio nuts to decorate.

Pour a layer of jelly into the bottom of a mould and allow to set. Remove the egg yolks from the whites and whisk the yolks with the sugar and the grated rind and juice of the lemons over a pan of hot water, until thick and creamy. Allow to cool. Whip the condensed milk slightly and fold in the egg and lemon mixture. Whisk the whites to a very stiff froth and add the egg and lemon mixture gradually, a dessertspoonful at a time, beating well between each addition to keep the mixture stiff. Dissolve the gelatine in a very little hot water and stir this into the mixture. Be sure to mix the gelatine very thoroughly into the mixture, or it will set unevenly. When set, dip the mould into warm water for a minute to loosen the contents. Turn out and decorate with whipped cream and pistachio nuts.

Next Week: Blackberry Sponge.

AUTUMN SILHOUETTE

FOUNDATIONS FOR EVENING WEAR

FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.

THE Paris autumn openings are showing silhouette influence in a big way, and there are also a host of new ideas that are going to make you sit up and stare. The mode, as shown in these autumn styles, is a reckless daring thing, a creature of extravagance and amusing whims. Fashion slits her long skirts, showing unexpected and intriguing glimpse of her slender ankles; she veils her corsage with mock modesty, and exposes a natural waistline, or else she covers the nape of her neck in order to show off the white beauty of shoulders and throat.

The capricious creature is not quite sure what she wants to do with her silhouette. She knows that her new rôle of semi-mysterious charmer does not allow her to outline her body with bold strokes, and yet she will not hide her pure, perfect line with heavy folds of obliterating width. And so she plays with volume, pressing materials close to her waist and hips, pushing them out in graceful fullness around her feet and shoulders. There is wisdom in her wiles, for her curving slimness stands out in sharp contrast to the width above and below. The robe-de-style full, below a small tight bodice, is her newest evening dress. And this she wears when she is tired of playing the siren in slashed drapery.

INTERESTING DETAILS

Interesting details abound in the fashions this season, and they bear testimony to the creative imagination of the designers. Pockets, shaped like purses, umbrellas, gloves, tortoishell handbags and folding hats, are all details of note. The umbrellas are small and in every colour imaginable, the gloves are usually made with gauntlets for day wear and discreetly match the costume you are wearing.

The new sleeves will face the world squarely, but without blustering bravado. They will be slightly padded, and sleeve tops may be treated with discreet fullness, but otherwise the upper part of the silhouette will be inconspicuous and unassuming.

NEW IDEAS

Just when the slightly jaded fashion experts decide that prints have outlived all good reason, along comes this season's super-collection of new ideas, and we all take a good breath and start raving anew. Black, or any dark-coloured background, provides the perfect contrast for the loveliest of floral designs ever printed. There are huge tropic blossoms for the best of the party clothes, wide-spaced nosegays for afternoon models, and a grand assortment of Paisleys, old mellow Persian patterns, and the more flamboyant peasant effects—complete to the wild magentas, the weird greens, and the blues. Watery, blurred designs of exotic colouring, or bands of big, bold flowers and bigger leaves, are other finds—with the absurdly funny ideas in figures and fancy fruit and vegetables, and the oddities in pins, tags and mottoes being used for the interesting day-time clothes. When these begin to pall, try the gypsy stripes, or the outsize dots and dashes. It's all in fun, anyway!

FOUNDATION GARMENTS

Have you ever gone to a party where you got stuck in one of those chairs that seem to swallow you up for good and all, and, because the effort of getting up and down was just too much, you stayed and stuck? Sitting in one position all the evening, like a bump or a log, is not going to make a belle out of you. You must keep in circulation, move around, be animated, be charming—and you just can't do it if your foundation garment isn't right or you're badly corseted.

The foundation garment for evening wear must be perfect, and it must be supple. To be right it must have that uncorseted effect, and must allow the greatest possible freedom of movement.

Dancing is another problem. Most of us, unfortunately, need some help to achieve that long, slithery look in a dance frock. But we mustn't appear stiff. Your figure shows up more in dancing than in any other activity. You don't want to look as stiff as a ramrod in your partner's arms, do you? And there is not only the matter of appearance to consider. One's disposition is immensely important to one's charm. If you're uncomfortable, you won't, I'll be bound, be a pleasant companion. There's nothing more annoying than constant discomfort caused by any kind of pressure. If your corset is too tight, if the bones dig into you, if it cuts into your thighs, if it restrains your legs, so that you can't make a proper step, but mince along when you're in a hurry, if you're aware of it every minute of the day, the effect will tell.

MILLINERY

Amusing hats are being shown this season—hats that women find amusing, and which are the very sort they want to brighten up their new wardrobes. Delightful is a new "George Washington" with the wig-bow at the back, as if holding in the curls, but in reality holding down the dip of a red knotted straw, alternating with rows of cornflowers worked on coarse white net. New béret shapes are being shown in wide, very flat cones of Indo-Chinese inspiration, hexagonal and lozenged, and the capelines with square brims of geometrical architecture. In spite of the commonplace of the rounded effects being banished in the greater part of the new models, it remains harmonious and becoming. The god of geometry has this time become a goddess, adding grace to the exactitude of measurement and proportion. These original and charming hats are sometimes brightened by a metallic effect, or fluttering feathers and gay flowers.

Brilliant taffetas in loveliest shades make stitched hats with dashing crowns sloped narrower at the top, and brims tilted down over the face, although with an upward side trend. The little restaurant hats in stitched black taffetas are very smart. They are sometimes trimmed with bobbing lilies-of-the-valley, or a quaint assortment of straight, black ostrich and bright flowers. A glorified American sailor shape in gros-grain, worn by a well-known French actress at the Daunau Theatre, was trimmed with saucy green ribbons, and in another act she wore a wavy straw fluted like the curls on an English judge's wig and veiled fashionably, very unlike the headgear of a judge in any country.

TRIBUNAL JUDGE PAYS TRIBUTE

THE LATE MR. JOHN MACDONALD

When the sitting of the Railway Tribunal opened in the Four Courts, Dublin, yesterday, the Chairman, Judge O'Brien, said that he desired to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of Mr. John MacDonald, who, as solicitor for the Great Southern Railways Company, had been very frequently engaged in the proceedings of the Tribunal. Mr. MacDonald, he said, was a man possessing the highest gifts of head and heart, a distinguished member of his profession, and a lovable personality. The Great Southern Railways Company, the great corporation whose legal affairs he had so successfully guided for some years past, must be acutely sensible of the loss they had sustained. The Court, too, mourned his death, for he was at all times a valuable asset, with his worthy contributions of knowledge and co-operation, and, above all, in the complete reliance which could be placed in his ideal sense of honour and trust. Speaking for himself, Judge O'Brien said that the passing of Mr. MacDonald was a personal loss.

Mr. E. J. Phelps, K.C., on behalf of the Great Southern Railways Co. and the members of the staff, said that Mr. MacDonald always had been of the greatest assistance in the various dealings with the G.S.R. Company, and he had left behind him a splendid memorial of service.

Mr. John O'Brien, representing the Department of Industry and Commerce, said that all who had the pleasure of being associated with the late Mr. MacDonald fully recognised his outstanding ability and great personal qualities.

The Tribunal then took up the consideration of lists of new exceptional rates more than 40 per cent. below the standard granted by the Great Southern Railways Company.

Mr. T. F. Brazil, chief rates clerk, G.S.R., in evidence, said that the several commodities, including grain, bacon and hams, cement, sugar, which were specified in the lists of exceptional rates, were not capable of bearing the ordinary rates and charges, and it was in the public interest that relief be granted by modifying the lists of rates before the Court.

The lists of exceptional rates, subject to certain amendments, were sanctioned by the Court.

Mr. P. Breathnach represented the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. John O'Brien represented the Department of Industry and Commerce.

Mr. P. J. Floyd, traffic manager, G.S. Rlys. Co., also attended, and the company was represented by Mr. Joseph Healy.

The Invincibles

Ecce iterum Crispinus! The Abbey Theatre play on the Invincibles has inspired two of my paragraphs this week already, and now, at the risk of boring readers, I subjoin a third.

It happened that one of the very few branches of the Invincibles outside Dublin was situated in Westmeath, and this particular branch, for some unholy reason, sought to murder Colonel Lyster Smythe, of Barbara Villa, Drumcree. The assassins lay in ambush for him one Sunday on his return from the church at Collinstown. They failed to shoot him, but shot his wife, who was accompanying him.

They were brought to trial, and the counsel for their defence was one Edward Carson, a young barrister, then at the outset of his career.

This is described as Carson's first and last appearance on the Nationalist side. The story is told in the first volume of Edward Marjoribanks's "Life."

Bad News for Voroshilov

I look with pleasure to the appearance of a new book by Dennis Wheatley. Dennis Wheatley, as pretty well everyone knows, is a novelist, but this latest book of his is a biography of Voroshilov, the present head of the Soviet forces, and the man who did more than anybody else, with the possible exception of the recently liquidated Tuchachevsky, to roll back the armies of half the world from the incipient Red Republic.

What worries me is the effect that this book must have in Russia. Mr. Wheatley's works are certainly read there. A sketch-map, indeed, published with his books shows that there are very few countries into whose language his writings have not been translated.

Now the author is a fervent admirer of Voroshilov, and I shudder to think of Stalin's feelings when this eulogy of one of his marshals comes under his notice. If recent events in Russia are any guide, it will not be long before Voroshilov follows his comrade Tuchachevsky into liquidation. Stalin does not seem to like rivals, whether they are his friends or not.

Esperanto's Jubilee

In 1887 Dr. Zamenhof published his book entitled "International Language: Introduction and Full Text-book." On the title-page of the book he called himself "Dr. Esperanto," and, as his new language was referred to as "the language of Esperanto," it speedily achieved the inventor's pseudonym for itself.

This year groups in all countries have been celebrating the Golden Jubilee of Esperanto, and a great Universal Congress was held at Warsaw a few months ago to mark the event. The Jubilee has been officially recognised by many Governments, and the Government of Brazil has issued a special postage stamp to mark the important place that Esperanto holds in the world. The stamp is printed in green, exhibiting a terrestrial globe with a girdle bearing the words, "Ora Jubileo de Esperanto."

The inventor of Esperanto, Dr. Lazarus Ludovic Zamenhof, was a Russian oculist, who was born in 1859 and died in 1917. In recognition of his work for international peace and amity through his new language he was decorated by the Governments of France and Spain.

The Earl of MacDuff

To the young Earl of MacDuff belongs the credit for an innovation in ballroom practice. He is trying his new tactics out in London, but they probably will cross to Dublin, being what it is, in due time.

He wishes, apparently, to deal a blow to the rigid "party system" of modern ballrooms. At present all members of a party keep themselves rigidly aloof from every other party, and only dance with one another. He holds that, to make for greater matinées, they shall be free to dance with anybody in the room whom they know.

Lord MacDuff is the son of Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, and in the fulness of time will inherit the Connaught title. He is no "carpet lord," as might be deduced unwisely from his interest in dancing, but a fine, strapping fellow who can take off his coat and shoe a horse at need. He is well known in the hunting fields of Leicestershire, and hopes, I hear, to get some hunting here this season.

Enterprising Sweeps

A friend who lives in the suburbs tells me that the other morning two smart young men arrived to sweep the chimneys in her house.

Both wore Army tunics. They explained that military jackets were ideal for the job: they buttoned right up to the neck; they were cheap and comfortable, and they lasted a long time.

But what surprised my informant was the fact that these two tradesmen drove up to the door in a well-kept baby motor car.

They told her that Dublin is now such an extensive city that a car is absolutely essential for the efficient performance of their work.

They supply their customers with printed cards, and appointments are made by post. This is a much better system than walking or cycling up and down a suburban road shouting: "Sweep! Sweep! Sweep!"

Brainstorms?

Twice, one day this week, I wondered if something had gone wrong with me.

In the afternoon I was walking in the vicinity of Ticknock. In a field close beside the road stood a cow, and on the cow's back a magpie was walking up and down in a perfectly unconcerned fashion. Every now and then the cow would heave her face round to scratch her shoulder, whereupon the magpie would move a few inches further back.

About 9 o'clock in the evening I stood outside this office, in Westmoreland street, when the strains of the pipes met my ears. To right and to left I looked, but not a sign was there of any piper. I looked across the road: still no piper.

And then I looked upwards, to where, in the front of the top deck of a tram, was a small group of pipers, piping.

The Missing Word

Against a wall in what was politically a "no man's land" reclined a Belfast man who had been supping and sipping rather well, and a passing policeman heard him say "To hell with——"

The policeman stopped, took out notebook and pencil, and waited for the sentiment to be rounded off.

Once again the "drunk" said "To hell with—— " and stopped.

The policeman peered at him. He peered at the policeman. Again he said "To hell with——"

"Go on," said the policeman, "to hell with who?"

"To hell with—— No! It would be too expensive to tell you."

ECHOES OF THE TOWN

The Chief Secretary's Lodge : Old Dublin at the Abbey : Bridge Hostesses : Miss Eileen Blandford : Dublin Literary Society's Season : Miss Elizabeth Bowen

BY KITTY CLIVE

THE Chief Secretary's Lodge in the Phœnix Park, where the United States Minister and Mrs. John Cudahy held their first reception on Monday night last, could provide an interesting chapter of as yet unwritten history. Since the Lodge was taken over by the State in 1782 it was occupied by the various Chief Secretaries, many of them sympathetic statesmen who came from London full of ambition to help Ireland, and who, invariably, left disillusioned. The Lodge, with its beautiful situation and lovely views, was built, I believe, by Johnson, who was the Chief Surveyor to the Irish Government. The Viceregal Lodge is an older building, but was reconstructed by Johnson. The United States Government, being the first to send a representative to Ireland after the Anglo-Irish Treaty, was given choice of headquarters, but the lease expires in January, when it is believed it will be the residence of the new President.

Crowded First Night

Monday last saw a crowded first night, as usual, at the Abbey Theatre, but I noticed that it was not the habitués, but many old Dubliners, some of whom remembered the sensational events—the release from prison of Parnell, and the Phœnix Park murders—who made up the audience at the new play by Mr. Frank O'Connor and Mr. Hugh Hunt. They talked in groups in the foyer, and told stories of incidents and people of which the younger generation knew little. The thrills which each act brought, and the interest which the play holds, were spoiled for many by the singing of the hymn at the close. This staged community singing of a religious hymn, followed by the "Heart Bowed Down," introduced an artificial note, as well as some resentment, which many felt at using the hymn for theatrical effect. The wish that the close of the play might be changed in further productions was expressed by some.

MISS E. BLANDFORD.

PROF. MAGENNIS.

Dublin Literary Society

Last week Professor William Magennis, President of the Dublin Literary Society, hold the annual "At Home" to open the winter season. Professor Magennis is aiming at reviving the old National Literary Society, which formed such an interesting part of Dublin social and artistic life in the past. Many people did not think this was possible, for the National Literary Society was the foundation of so much that has now been dispersed. From the National Literary Society the dramatists went to the Abbey and brought the literary following, including the Secretary, Mr. Henderson, who held the dual post for both institutions. But now the Dublin Literary Society is drawing members and select audiences, and the informality of the gathering adds interest to the meetings. To-night Mr. Lennox Robinson will discuss the Irish books of the year, and members will criticise and approve as they please. This freedom of expression is the charm of the Society, and often brings forth critics of value, which adds considerably to the meetings of the Society

The Bridge Party

The vogue of the bridge party has not lessened, and already the bridge hostess is busy arranging her "date" to entertain her friends. Last week there were two big functions, which were most enjoyable. Mrs. Connor entertained her friends at Ross's Hotel and Mrs. Kilkelly at the Gresham. Mrs. Connor, who is the widow of the late Judge Connor, was a well-known hostess of some years ago, better known as Mrs. "Dickey" Dowse, the widow of Mr. Richard Dowse, a son of the late Chief Baron Dowse. Mr. Dowse was one of the organisers of the great society charity balls held at the Rotunda in the closing days of the late régime. They were important events in social Dublin, and vied with State functions in elegance and fashion. Mrs. Kilkelly, who had a most successful bridge party at the Gresham, is the sister of the late George Moore and the heir to the Irish novelist's estate. Dublin has its many groups who take their pleasures in their own way, and the bridge circles are by no means the smallest.

Miss Eileen Blandford

I think Miss Eileen Blandford is one of the most untiring workers in any movement she undertakes, and she has made a great success of the workroom of the St. John Ambulance Brigade And yet she is appealing for more workers, for the output of 20,000 garments for distribution among the organisations in the city since she started the idea of helping the St. Vincent de Paul Society and the St. Patrick and St. Lawrence Nurses does not satisfy her. She tells me modestly that the assistance she receives from three hundred business girls who give willingly their time to this social service has made the workroom an invaluable help during the winter season. Miss Blandford, who is a County Meath woman, is secretary of the Brigade. She decided at Mrs. Heany's suggestion to open a workroom and supply the materials for making garments for the needy. She is in touch with those who know the misery and sufferings of the poor people, and it is through these organisations that the St. John Ambulance works. And she expects a number of new volunteers as the result of her recent appeal.

Miss Elizabeth Bowen

I hear that Miss Elizabeth Bowen, who was recently elected to the Irish Academy of Letters, has a very large following of readers in the United States. Indeed, during the summer months she entertains at Bowenscourt many visitors from across the Atlantic. Miss Bowen is the only child of the late Henry Cole Bowen, of Bowenscourt, County Cork, and married Mr. Alan Cameron, a grandson of Sir Charles Landon, the famous architect, who holds an important position with the B.B.C. The Bowens are of old Cromwellian stock. It was said that Colonel Bowen was granted by Cromwell as much land as a hawk could fly over in a day. Bowenscourt is a very large mansion, regarded as one of the four largest in Ireland. With her success as a novelist, Miss Bowen has spent a lot of money in modernising and making comfortable that part of the house which she occupies in the summer and where she entertains so hospitably. But she resides in London in the winter as her husband's work is there, and she enters into a good deal of the literary life of the city. At one time she and her husband shared a house with Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, then Mr. and Mrs. John Buchan, but they have now their fine home in Regent's Park. She has given some alluring pictures of Cork around Bowenscourt in many of her books, one which I remember particularly in that fine novel which was selected by the Book Society's choice, "The House in Paris." She is a worthy addition to the group of the Irish Academy.

MR. F. O'CONNOR.

MR. H. HUNT.

The Artists' Haunt

I believe it was Paul Henry who first made Achill known to the artists, and now it has become the corner of Ireland where each year one meets painters from all parts of the world. He did for Achill Island what Jack B. Yeats achieved for Connemara and the Arran Islands. That is why so many Irish artists are eagerly awaiting the Commission which will accomplish something for the people of the island to enable them to live on the land. Miss Stella Frost and Miss Barton have built a pretty bungalow there, where they spend part of the year. Miss Dorothy Blackam is another artist who has given us a number of pictures of Achill. But not alone our native artists, but some of the best-known Americans, have come over inspired by the magnificence of the great cliffs and the beauty of Keel. The late Robert Henri came year after year to paint in Achill, and he told me that no sooner did he return to New York than his pictures were sought by his patrons. All the artists carry away from Achill a love of the people and a desire to do something to keep Achill the picturesque place it is, which can only be done by making the people independent of outside influence and assistance and able to make a living at home.

THE HOSPITAL LIBRARY

A NEW SERVICE OPENED

£10,000 GIFT FROM TRUST FUND

THE hospital library service, which, in the words of its sponsor, will "brighten and while away the tedious hours of sickness and convalescence," was formally inaugurated at the offices of the Hospital Library Council, 49 Upper Mount street, Dublin, yesterday, by the Minister for Local Government and Public Health (Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly).

Prominent members of the medical profession and representatives of Dublin hospitals watched the Minister stamp books, which will be the first to be issued under the new service.

Speakers at the ceremony complimented the Rev. Stephen Brown, S.J., chairman of the Hospital Library Council, who is recognised as having worked indefatigably for several years past to promote the scheme.

Welcoming the guests, Father Brown, who presided, said that the library would, he felt sure, brighten and while away the tedious hours of sickness and convalescence spent by the patients in hospitals and sanatoria.

After giving details of the scheme, Father Brown said that the grateful thanks of the association were due to the Hospitals' Commission, and in particular to its chairman, Mr. Doran, for the courtesy and sympathy with which the Hospital Library Committee had invariably been received. A great part of the credit for the inauguration of the scheme was also due to the Minister for Local Government and his officials, Messrs. E. P. McCarron and Collins; but it was the sweepstakes that had provided the finance for the scheme, said Father Brown.

INTRINSICALLY GOOD

Although the hospital library was the outcome of quite a number of contributory factors, the success of the scheme, the power which enabled it to overcome all obstacles, lay in the intrinsic goodness of the whole idea.

"There are very few of us here who have not known what it is to be laid up with some more or less serious illness, who have not known the long, weary hours and days of convalescence," continued Father Brown. "And most of us, being at least moderately well-to-do people, have known in those weary days the solace of interesting and pleasant reading." But they must remember that there were in hospitals and sanatoria many hundreds of patients who were denied that solace. Hitherto the great majority of hospitals could do little for patients in that way. They possessed no library worthy of the name—little more than a few score ill-assorted, half-worn volumes, back numbers of magazines and the like. The hospital library scheme rendered possible the building in each hospital of a bright, new, well-chosen, varied library—a boon and a Godsend, surely, to every patient who was in a condition to read.

CULTURAL VALUE

Father Brown referred also to the therapeutic value as a positive aid to recovery of reading, and added that the hospital library might have, like rightly directed reading in general, a cultural and educational value. It might well give a taste for reading to people who never had it before, and might enable others to follow up lines of reading and of study which lack of leisure had long closed to them.

In the inaugurating of a system of hospital libraries Ireland was falling into line with the great majority of the progressive countries. If they were a little bit late in the field, they could profit by the experience of other countries.

Father Brown concluded by thanking Miss Christina Keogh, organiser and secretary, and the staff, and remarked that the occasion represented for him a dream come true.

After thanking the Council for undertaking the organisation of the hospital library service, Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, said that many had experienced the relief given by books in weary hours of illness and convalescence, and did not need to be convinced that books in adequate supply in hospitals would be an undoubted benefit.

Referring to the remarkable progress in library provision as a whole, and the county library in particular, in recent years, Mr. O'Kelly said that this was due to an increasing recognition of the value of the library's service to the community. It was not by compulsion or financial inducements that local authorities had been led to establish and maintain libraries: it was the existence of a population which needed books not only for recreation, but also for intellectual culture and information.

DEMAND FOR BOOKS

"The more education permeates all classes of the community, the greater will be the demand for books," said the Minister. A hospital library service was the inevitable outgrowth of a public library system; for, where the people in health had access to books, they would wish to have books when they were laid up. They must regard this service, then, as another stage towards complete library provision.

After mentioning that the present development had been made possible by a grant of £10,000 from the Hospitals' Trust fund, Mr. O'Kelly said that it was one of the many benefits derived from the hospital sweepstakes.

Speaking of the work of the Hospital Library Council, he said that the co-operation of hospital authorities was essential, and the Council could confidently expect that co-operation. It was scarcely necessary to say that no interference in any way with the regular routine of hospitals was contemplated. The Council would not only supply books, but give technical advice on equipment and the best methods of record.

A start was being made with what was called the voluntary or semi-voluntary hospitals and the public sanatoria. For the present the Council was not attempting to cover the county and district hospitals or the mental hospitals. In time, no doubt, it would be able to expand its activities. The Minister emphasised that there need not be the slightest fear that books would pass from hospitals containing patients being treated for infectious diseases to other hospitals.

He thought hospital architects should take note of the fact that in designing new or extending old hospitals provision would have to be made for a library room.

Mr. O'Kelly added that it must be a matter of peculiar gratification to the Chairman of the Council, Father Brown, to witness the culmination of his efforts, extended over several years, to bring a hospital library service into being. (Applause).

THE FIRST BOOK

Mr. O'Kelly then formally opened the new scheme by stamping books which will be the first to be issued by the library (three editions of "Peig," the story of the Blasket Islands, by Peg Sayers).

Proposing thanks to the Minister, the Lord Mayor of Dublin (Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D.), joined in congratulating Father Brown and the committee on the splendid work which they had taken up.

Referring to the part which Hospitals Trust had taken in the scheme, the Lord Mayor said:—"I often wonder whether the time has not arrived for some hospital or library to be named after the late Mr. R. J. Duggan, as a memorial to his enterprise in the early days, when 'sweeps' were not as popular as they are to-day." At times it seemed virtually forgotten that without the sweepstakes it would not have been possible to do any of these things for the people.

Seconding, Sir Joseph Glynn hoped that in a very short time the scheme would be extended to the county hospitals and homes. He would like to see every county home provided with facilities for the instruction and amusement of the patients, and thought that the scheme should encourage little library committees in the country towns.

Supporting, Dr. R. J. Rowlette said that they should get back to what the word "hospital" really meant. Hospitals were not merely houses for the treatment of people for sickness. They were, in a literal sense, guest houses, and it was the duty of those who were responsible for the provision and management of hospitals to see that the patients were treated as guests should be treated in a private house. "We should provide all the amenities possible, not merely for the treatment of the patients, but also for their comfort," said Dr. Rowlette.

Speaking of the Hospitals' Commission, Dr. Rowlette said that people should realise that it could only make its decisions after careful and lengthy consideration. Some people might think that the time taken was too lengthy, but he protested emphatically against what he termed "captious criticism" of the Commission.

Also present on the platform were Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for South County Dublin, and Lord Powerscourt.

"LOST HORIZON"

RONALD COLMAN'S NEW FILM

At the invitation of Mr. A. Elliman a select audience had the privilege of seeing the film version of James Hilton's famous novel, "Lost Horizon," at the Metropole Cinema yesterday.

When "Lost Horizon" was published three years ago it was at once recognised as a novel of more than usual significance, and the verdict of the critics was later confirmed by the reading public. The story is at the same time a thrilling adventure tale and a satirical commentary on existing social and political conditions, which has been made into a screen play by Robert Riskin.

The film follows closely the lines of the novel. Such departures as there are tend in the main to intensify the dramatic effects of certain episodes. Robert Conway, diplomat and idealist, leaves the war-stricken town of Baskul in the last aeroplane with the intention of reaching Shanghai on his way to London. Instead of Shanghai he finds himself kidnapped by the Tibetan pilot, and landed in the mountains hundreds of miles from contact with the world. In due time he reaches the community called Shangri-La—a kind of Erewhon ruled by a Belgian priest who is said to be 300 years old.

Gradually the peaceful charm of the place overcomes his desire to return to England, and he settles down to live with the Utopian community. Three of Conway's companions accept the situation, undertaking work for the community; but his younger brother yearns for "civilisation." As Robert Conway is designated Chief of the Community, George Conway decides to depart, and in that decision brings about a disaster.

The photography throughout is magnificent—particularly that of the avalanche which destroys the mountain convoy—and there are many fine pieces of acting. Ronald Colman, H. B. Warner, and Sam Jaffe are especially noteworthy in a film that will stimulate thought while offering thrilling entertainment.

The company was afterwards entertained to luncheon in the Metropole Restaurant by Mr. A. Elliman.

MISSION WORK IN INDIA

An address upon his work in India was delivered by the Rev. V. Fielding Smith, from the Diocese of Lucknow, at the annual Gift Day of the Woman's Work Committee of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, which was held yesterday in the Oak House, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. Mr. Fielding Smith was introduced by the Chairman, the Archdeacon of Dublin, who said that the speaker was a native of Dublin and a graduate of Trinity College. He had been doing splendid work in India, in the district of Moradabad, where, in his school, he was turning boys into good citizens. The Archdeacon also spoke of the work of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

Mr. Fielding Smith said his school was at Ummedpur. It was a large place, and among its activities was the teaching of Indian boys to farm. A number of the old boys came back to visit it month after month, and among his pupils were five sons of former pupils of the school. Mr. Fielding Smith had many interesting stories to tell of his eleven years in the mission field. There was a large attendance, and numerous gifts were received.

CHILD'S BEST LAXATIVE

Don't rush to extremes, when you realise suddenly that your child's bowels need opening and give him a strong dose of medicine! The best way to relieve a child's tender little bowels is the natural way.

'California Syrup of Figs' is the gentlest, safest laxative you can possibly give a child. It starts an easy bowel movement that carries away all the poisonous contents of the bowels—all the hard, pent-up matter and half-digested food that makes him feel so miserable.

In a few hours, when the child's bowels have been relieved, when he's had a thorough but gentle internal cleansing—the difference in him is amazing. He's bright and cheerful again, full of energy. Always give a little 'California Syrup of Figs' when you think your child is "stuffed up" after missing a day. 'California Syrup of Figs' is a pure fruit laxative. It never "over acts," never causes the slightest discomfort—it is always kind to a child's sensitive little inside.

Many mothers have adopted the plan of a dose of 'California Syrup of Figs' once a week. It keeps the child regular, happy and well.

'California Syrup of Figs' is recommended by doctors and nurses and is sold by all chemists, 1/3 and 2/6. The larger size is the cheaper in the long run. Be sure you get 'California Syrup of Figs' brand.

VON RIBBENTROP'S RETURN TO LONDON

WITHDRAWAL CANARD

It is learnt in Berlin in competent quarters that Herr von Ribbentrop will probably be present at Berchtesgaden, Herr Hitler's Bavarian home, when the Duke of Windsor sees the Fuehrer, says Reuter.

Afterwards it is expected that he will return to London to resume his place as German representative on the Non-Intervention Committee.

Rumours current in Berlin about a possible general exchange of German diplomatic posts, beginning with the withdrawal of Herr von Ribbentrop from London, are dismissed as mythical.

In authoritative circles it is stated that no such withdrawal is contemplated.

It is pointed out that Herr von Hassell, the German Ambassador in Rome, who has been talked of as the next Ambassador in London, is one of the builders of the Berlin-Rome axis, and that his departure from Italy could scarcely be considered at present.

As far as London is concerned, it is conceded that time may bring its changes, but that any change may be ruled out for the present.

The impression seems to prevail in Berlin that Herr von Ribbentrop's position as principal adviser on foreign policy to the Fuehrer, as well as that of Ambassador to London, is insufficiently understood in Great Britain, and it is considered that this position, in addition to explaining his periodical journeys to Berlin, invests his mission to Great Britain with an exceptional importance.

FIRE ON HAREWOOD ESTATE

EIGHTY TONS OF HAY DESTROYED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

PORTUMNA, Thursday.

When Sergeant King and Guard Finlay were on duty at 3 o'clock this morning they were attracted by a fire on the Earl of Harewood's demesne. In the haggard they found a hay barn ablaze.

The manager (Mr. Gordon) and the employés of the estate succeeded in preventing the flames extending to other large quantities of hay and straw.

The haggard is surrounded by large stores containing hay and corn, and had the fire extended these were in danger.

Members of the C.I.D. are investigating the cause of the fire, which destroyed eighty tons of hay.

SEEN KISSING IN PUBLIC

JAIL SENTENCE ON WOMAN

SECOND PROSECUTION AT DUNDALK

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DUNDALK, Thursday.

SENTENCE of a month's imprisonment, made, said the Justice, "with a view to keeping her out of the State," was passed on a Glasgow woman, who was summoned at Dundalk Court, before District Justice Goff, under the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1935, with committing an act of impropriety in a public place. The woman was not present, and it was stated that the summons had been served on her before she returned to Glasgow.

The charge arose out of an incident at Blackrock (Dundalk) on Sunday, 1st August, when the Blackrock Vigilance Committee, directed the attention of a Guard to a young man and woman who were embracing in the public view, in the church grounds. Last week the young man was summoned, and ordered by the Justice to contribute £2 to the funds of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Thomas Murphy, Blackrock, said that while walking with his wife on the evening of August 1st he was returning home through a public pass, and saw the pair lying on the ground embracing. He went to tell Father Connolly, C.C.

AN EMBRACE

Thomas Byrne and James Smith gave evidence that on getting a report they went to the place and saw the pair embracing. Smith said that they were waiting on a Guard who was to come to the scene, and they kept the pair in view. He passed them when going to look out for the Guard, and they were still there. While he was waiting on another pass the man and woman went by him, and the woman said: "Our business seems to be everybody's business this evening." He thought she was under the influence of drink. He knew she was in the habit of coming to Blackrock on holiday.

Guard McManus said that while on duty in the village he got a report and went to the chapel grounds, where he met the pair who were pointed out to him by Smith and Byrne. He stopped them and told them he wanted their names, as there had been a complaint of misconduct against them. They both said they had been lying on the grass, and there had been no misconduct except that they were kissing. He could not say that the woman had any drink; the man seemed to have drink taken, but was not drunk.

Sergeant Duggan said that this woman came to Blackrock year after year.

TO KEEP OUT

Justice Goff—This is a case, possibly, where she will not come here again. In order to achieve that, since her absence is probably the best thing that could happen, I order her one month's imprisonment. There would be no means of carrying that out unless she comes back, as you could not enforce that warrant outside the State. I suggest you do not try to do it, but that it be held over her in case she comes back.

The Justice added that he wanted to highly commend the Vigilance Committee. If they did nothing else they would have done good work to prevent this kind of thing.

Superintendent McDonagh said that the Guards were always very glad to get any sort of assistance from the public generally, irrespective of Vigilance Committees. They were always anxious to get assistance from any respectable citizen. These things were not likely to happen along the sides of the roads now, and the Guards could not put men along every by-pass.

Justice—This is aggravated by being on Church property. I am making that order with a view to keeping this lady out of the State.

NEWBRIDGE, Thursday.

The five men who were injured in the road accident at Johnstown, Naas, on Wednesday are still detained in Kildare County Hospital. Three of them—James Hayden, Denis Dunne, and Matthew Morrin—although not completely out of danger, are progressing favourably.

X-Ray revealed Stomach Ulcers

But this sufferer escaped operation

Almost as difficult to bear as the pain itself is the dread that a badly disordered stomach may lead to the operating table. Even when matters are as serious as that, there is encouragement for the sufferer in the fact that Maclean Brand Stomach Powder has often not only removed the fear of operation but has rendered operation unnecessary. Here is a typical case.

'A marvellous cure'

"I have been under treatment for five years with severe stomach trouble and found myself getting worse, till I went to Hospital for examination and X-ray, and then found that I was suffering from chronic ulcers. I refused to go for an operation on account of my age, 62.

"A friend asked me if I had ever tried Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. I said I had tried everything but could not get any relief. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder was about my last hope, but I have only had four bottles and I think it a marvellous cure. I feel like a new man since taking it. I should think it one of the best medicines in the world for its purpose." E. L. R.

Stop your Stomach Pain with Maclean Brand Stomach Powder

Stomach discomfort may be trivial now, but unless the cause is removed it may extend its poisonous action and lead to chronic suffering. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder quickly brings relief. It gently removes impurities, relieves pressure, attacks and neutralises harmful acid, protects the stomach lining, and restores normal digestive action.

Look for the signature Alex. C. Maclean

Unless you get the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder you may be disappointed. You are always safe if you see the signature "Alex. C. Maclean" on the bottle and carton. It is never sold loose. All chemists sell it at 1/6, 2/3 and 5/3 in Powder or Tablet form.

We won't make sets we wouldn't buy ourselves

Not a bit like any ORDINARY set

I get a lot of quiet amusement from the great pride that some people have for their new radio set when they buy it. You would think, by their enthusiasm, that they had a new addition to the family instead of just a new set. Neighbours must come in and admire it; the main topic of conversation just before and after it arrives is "the set," and he who does not speak well of it is an outcast for life.

Well, for people who want to take a real pride in their new set, I definitely, without the slightest hesitation or reserve, with my hand on my heart and with absolute confidence, recommend a Murphy. A Murphy, like little Audrey, is extremely well-behaved, and is never likely to let you down before visitors. To have to correct a fault is almost unheard of. Everybody who sees it will say—"What a lovely set—I wonder where it gets its good looks from?" And the tone is so natural that your wife will almost certainly say it is just like being in the broadcast studio itself, and not a bit like listening to other ordinary sets.

And to think you can adopt a Murphy for as little as £10 . 0!—well, it's almost too good to be true.

The Irish Times

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1937.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

When the Northern House of Commons adjourned yesterday until November 9, protests were made by members against adjournment while so many people were unemployed in the Northern area.—(Page 7.)

That all the European yards were busy building ships, while few British ships were on order, was stated yesterday by Mr. Rebbeck, Chairman of Harland and Wolff, Ltd., following the launching of the motor vessel Delane for the Lamport and Holt Line at Belfast yesterday.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Mr. Eden, in the House of Commons last night, defended the Government's policy in regard to Spain and the Far East. He welcomed Italy's consent to the withdrawal of troops, and stated that British rights in the Mediterranean must be maintained. In regard to China, he said that Britain would work for peace at the Brussels Conference. Mr. Attlee (Leader of the Opposition) and Sir Archibald Sinclair (Liberal Leader) criticised the Government's policy. The Prime Minister replied to the debate, and the adjournment motion was carried.—(Page (Page 13.)

ABROAD

It is reported from Shanghai that the Chinese launched violent attacks on all fronts last night.—(Page 7.)

The main body of General Franco's troops are expected to enter Gijon, the last Government stronghold in Asturias, this morning.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING

At Sandown Park yesterday, Silver Bow II. won the Cholmondeley Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were buoyant yesterday, following the improved outlook in the international situation. The Industrial, Rail and Mining sections were notably strong.—(Page 12.)

Dublin Market was brighter, and many good rises were recorded. Guinness units spurted 2s. 3d. to 127s. 6d. Banking issues closed appreciably higher.—(Page 12.)

Britain's Part

Mr. Anthony Eden's speech on foreign policy in the House of Commons yesterday may not have been heroic, but it was full of common sense. He pointed out that more than once during the last two years Europe had been on the brink of the precipice of war; and there is very small doubt that, but for the good offices of the British Government, disaster would have overtaken the world. The trouble began when Signor Mussolini decided to defy all civilised opinion and make an unprovoked attack on Abyssinia. Fifty-two nations represented at Geneva condemned this reckless adventure, mainly on the ground that Abyssinia was a member of the League of Nations, and that Italy, as another member, had pledged herself to respect Ethiopian integrity. "Sanctions" were imposed on Italy, but in such a half-hearted manner that Signor Mussolini was able to laugh at them, and to go ahead with his fell designs as if Geneva never had existed.

> Treason doth never prosper: what's the reason?
> For if it prosper, none dare call it treason.

The Italian enterprise in Abyssinia prospered because the other nations had not the courage either to close the Suez Canal or to include oil among the commodities in the list of "sanctions." As Marshal de Bono admitted in his remarkably outspoken book, if either of these steps had been taken, the whole unhappy business would have collapsed in a few weeks. Having "got away" with the Abyssinian affair, Signor Mussolini was encouraged to pursue his policy of arrogant audacity to further extremes. He had succeeded in his desire to gain control of the Red Sea, thereby, to some extent at any rate, counteracting Britain's effective supremacy over the Suez Canal. Then he turned his attention to the other end of the Mediterranean, and his eye fell upon Spain. All the world knows what has happened since. The Italians seem to be determined to assume control of the Mediterranean. They very nearly came to blows with the British less than two years ago, when, but for the skill of the Foreign Office, nothing could have prevented war.

Italy has been the mainstay of the insurgent cause in Spain. She has supported General Franco for no reasons of altruism, but in order to create in the Peninsula what would amount to a vassal State. British and French interests immediately were affected when the first Italian soldier set foot upon Spanish soil. The British very naturally took the view that an Italian occupation of Spanish territory, whether on the mainland or in the Balearic Islands, would constitute a serious threat to the safe maintenance of their sea-route to India and the Far East; while the French feared not only the possible cutting of their maritime communications with North Africa, on which they will be forced to depend very largely for reinforcements in the event of another war, but also the establishment of a hostile Power in their rear. If Italy should control the Spanish Peninsula, France would be placed in dire straits. Hitherto, since the fall of Spain as a great Power, the French General Staff has been able virtually to ignore her in time of war; but with Signor Mussolini at the head of affairs in Madrid, she would be compelled to fortify and guard her Pyrenean frontier, thereby weakening seriously her defences vis-à-vis the Germans. For these reasons, and not because they had any particular sympathy with the Spanish "Reds," the French have been exceedingly anxious regarding the progress of the fighting in Spain. On more than one occasion, particularly when M. Léon Blum was Premier, the Paris Government was within an ace of taking steps which almost certainly would have led to war with the Italians, if not with Germany; and it is no exaggeration to say that Britain's restraining influence saved the situation repeatedly. In spite of continuous provocation, His Majesty's Government has refused to take hasty action, and the world's peace has been saved. Mr. Eden and his colleagues have done everything in their power to give effect to the policy of non-intervention in Spain. If that policy has failed, they are not at fault.

One thing is fairly certain. If Britain had been armed adequately the history of the past two years would have been written very differently. Mr. Eden told the House of Commons that what had happened had been a grim warning, not only to the present Government, but to any future Government in the United Kingdom. The fact is, however, that Britain was not armed, and was thrown back very largely on diplomatic weapons to maintain her prestige. What will happen in the future? As we think, British policy has been exceedingly clever. Not only has it resulted in the consolidation of the Anglo-French entente, which was in a pretty bad way some few years ago, but it has revived a strong sympathy with British aims in the United States. Signor Mussolini has been put absolutely in the wrong, and the first to recognise that fact has been Herr Adolf Hitler, who, in spite of the fun and games of the Berlin visit some weeks ago, has been cutting his diplomatic losses in Spain with some agility. The situation at the moment is reasonably clear. Mr. Eden has reaffirmed Britain's resolve to support non-intervention in Spain, on the practical ground that no other policy has the least chance of success; but, he added, His Majesty's Government was by no means indifferent to the course of events in the Mediterranean. If vital British interests are threatened, the necessary steps must be taken to preserve them. "We must maintain our right of way," said Mr. Eden, "on this main arterial road, and we are justified in expecting that such a right should be unchallenged." There is the whole thing in a nutshell. Britain will make many sacrifices in the cause of peace, but there are certain sacrifices that she cannot, and will not, make. The free passage of her ships through the Mediterranean is for the British Empire a matter of life and death. So long as that passage remains unchallenged the British Government will seek to interfere with the legitimate interests of no other Power in the Mediterranean or anywhere else. At the first serious threat to its freedom the whole complexion of world politics will be changed.

Adverse Trade Balance

For the year which ended on September 30th the adverse trade balance of the Free State reached its highest point since 1934. The figure of more than 20¼ million pounds has been exceeded in the past, but at the period when the adverse trade balance actually exceeded the visible exports there were extenuating conditions which are not supposed to be operative at present. Since the adverse trade balance exceeded the visible exports in 1934 trade agreements have been concluded with many countries, of which those with Great Britain are plainly of the greatest importance. During the past three years the value of exports from the Free State has increased steadily, until it is now some five million pounds better than it was in 1934; but, despite the gradual increase in the value of the export trade, the adverse trade balance is now at the highest point which it has ever reached for a year ending in September. The causes of this extraordinary situation are not difficult to discover; they lie on the face of the Government's policy. On the one side, efforts for the acclimatisation of unsuitable industries in the Free State have encouraged an unprecedented importation of the more durable class of commodity-goods, which are usually described as "capital goods." These imports come, in the main, from continental countries with which trade agreements have been made during the past five years. On the other—the political—side, the continuance of the so-called economic war between the Free State and Great Britain has encouraged the importation of large quantities of goods from every part of the world, irrespective of the amount of reciprocal trade which could be had from these countries. It was good to be able to say on political platforms that Britain was losing the trade, and to that extent was suffering damage; the growing export trade of Great Britain demolishes that argument at once. The country upon which the suffering is inflicted is the Free State itself, a fact that may be confirmed by reference to the published trade figures issued this morning. The adverse balance for the month of September is about 1¾ million pounds, and of this amount all but a small fraction can be traced to the inability, or the unwillingness, of countries other than Great Britain to take goods from the Free State to anything like the value of Free State purchases from them. Never before has it been so clearly and so unmistakably demonstrated that the attempts of the Free State to damage British export trade have not only failed in their purpose, but that they have recoiled upon the Free State itself with redoubled force. As the situation exists to-day the adverse trade balance is once again within close call of the total exports: and this is a situation to which serious and immediate attention must be directed. Cargoes of goods may leave Free State ports for Great Britain with no more excitement than the noise made by a steamer's siren. The dispatch of a few boxes of butter or a long-hundred of eggs to Kamchatka or Kalomo will be attended by a waving of banners and a series of more or less vacuous speeches. What the trade figures prove beyond question is that those countries from which the Free State is so anxious to import goods, to the detriment of British trade, have not the slightest desire to buy goods from the Free State. They are willing enough to take the cash: they are singularly unwilling to buy goods. Surely the time has come when this fatuous policy must be dropped? The balance of international payments is not so very favourable to the Free State that it can continue indefinitely to bestow its economic patronage upon people who refuse to play the game as it should, and must, be played if it is to be equally profitable to all the players.

The English Territorials

The first thing that greets a visitor from Ireland, when he alights from the cross-Channel vessel at Liverpool or Holyhead, is a gay poster, soliciting recruits for the British Territorial Army. Similar posters meet his gaze at every station between Liverpool or Holyhead and Dover, and he might be induced to think that the Territorial Army was the particular pet of the British people in general, and of the War Office in particular. The facts, apparently, are far different. While every effort has been made in the past to attract both officers and men for the Territorial Army, it has been treated with a neglect that almost amounts to contempt by the lords of the War Office. Hitherto, indeed, the directing staff of the War Office seems to have included no member of the "Terriers"—if they are still so called—and the force, which almost equals the Regular Army in strength, has had no voice in the affairs of defence. The War Office, however, has taken fright. As the Secretary of State for War announced this week, the Territorial Army is to be provided with a new and important liaison with the War Office. A Territorial officer is to be appointed a Director-General of the Office, and another Territorial officer, linked therewith, will be put in charge of recruiting publicity for the force. This change—which, to outsiders, seems a strangely meek and mild concession—is welcomed not so much for itself, as for its promise of better things to come. It marks virtually the first occasion on which the official militarists of Great Britain have deigned to notice the existence of a force which matters almost as much to their country as the Regular Army itself. Hitherto the higher ranks of the Territorial Army have been the almost exclusive preserve of Regular Army officers—which is not likely to create enthusiasm among the Territorials' commissioned ranks. As one newspaper puts it, "the better the individual Territorial, and the quicker he rose to command, the sooner his soldiering career was finished. . . . Such a blank wall prospect has not been an incentive to the best of the younger generation to qualify as trained leaders of the citizen forces." If the new appointments imply that the War Office proposes to take practical cognisance of the Territorial Army's existence, a very necessary stimulus may be given to the recruiting of both officers and "other ranks."

A La Lanterne!

A new picture of extravagance in the haute volée has been presented to the muttering working classes by a Labour member of Dáil Eireann. The exposé was made during a meeting of Malahide ratepayers, which was convened to investigate the deficiency of the local water supply; and it is as damning as any denunciation of Robespierre's from the tribunes. Apparently, while the citizen mothers of Malahide are driven to use last night's washing water for the morning tea, the feckless aristocracy of the upper town pour away gallon after gallon on their playthings. In the Labour T.D.'s bitter words: "The old ladies wash their pomeranians with drinking water every day, and the bachelors wash their motor cars." As yet indistinctly, but with the promise of an inevitable crescendo, we hear the drum of the tumbrils. In a far-off, ghastly vision we perceive dim, haughty figures in plus-fours and fur coats sluice down the guillotines with the blood of their former bridge partners, in a travesty of solicitude for the cleanliness of their own end. It is too late to plead—already the tumbrils are rolling by the Blue Lagoon—but ere Madame claims her heads we would offer one extenuating word. What, O working classes, would you do if you had to live with a pomeranian night and day? Pomeranians are not like your happy, healthy terriers that gambol from morn till eve in God's good air, and return to sleep at dusk in the hen-run, outhouse or bicycle shed. Pomeranians arise in the boudoir, pass the day on a chair in the salon, and move back—unventilated—to the boudoir with the fall of night. Under this routine it is utterly necessary to wash the pomeranian. You cry for the decapitation of the bachelors? Do you not see that a sahib must remain pukka to the end? All around him are keen eyes that will mark every step in his disintegration from the straight-backed, square-shooting, hard-riding colonel that he was to a tired old man, senile, bent and babbling, who cannot even keep his own motor car clean. At Poona his lancers were the garrison's pride. Those days are over; but, in the glisten of his mudguards, he can show that much of his old glory remains. We have said our say—and now let the blade be sharpened, and the end be swift and neat.

LONDON LETTER

ANXIETY DECREASES

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

OPTIMISM regarding a favourable solution of the Spanish problem was to the fore to-day, and in diplomatic and political circles the feeling was that a few days more should see definite decisions reached as to the evacuation of foreign volunteers. The assertion that the question of the volunteers will be considered first, and that of belligerent rights will not arise in the immediate future, is regarded as all to the good, though it has to be remembered that the two parties in Spain have yet to be consulted. They may accept the propositions put forward, but when a country is at war it is not easy for the antagonists to carry out all that they arrange or desire. Friction is likely to attend the despatch of an International Commission to Spain to make an estimate of the foreigners fighting on either side, since exact figures will be difficult to obtain. Generally speaking, however, the prospect is now regarded as hopeful, and General Franco's capture of Gijon has made it even brighter, inasmuch as it is in the Asturias that the majority of the Italian troops are fighting. With the whole of the province in his hands General Franco should be able to dispense with much of the assistance he has had from his Italian ally. Diplomatists, discussing the situation to-day, expressed the opinion that Signor Mussolini has made concessions because he is becoming anxious for a resumption of the British Italian talks regarding the future of the Mediterranean.

Proportionate Withdrawal

The British and French experts in the Non Intervention Committee set to work to-day on the plans which may have to be taken should the proposed compromise be reached. Mr. Hemming, the Secretary of the Committee, conferred with the British and French experts as to the composition and organisation of the Commissions of Inquiry, as well as to the arrangements necessary for the withdrawal of volunteers. It is unlikely that the token withdrawal of these volunteers will exceed 2,000, but, even so, accommodation will have to be provided for their transport, and a decision reached as to where they shall be sent. It is concluded that if at all possible they will be returned to their own countries. France originally suggested that a token withdrawal should be in proportion to the number of volunteers on either side, but she has agreed to the withdrawal of equal numbers at the present, and proportionate numbers later on, when the Commissions of Inquiry shall have been able to ascertain how many volunteers there are.

Russia's Attitude

The attitude of Russia in connection with the Non Intervention Committee was the subject of speculation to-day, and it is wondered what steps M. Maisky will now take, as he has already stated that the Soviet might have reservations to make. The feeling on this point, however, is that once Europe gets together with a settled and definite policy Moscow will not count greatly, and that the Committee will be able to proceed with its work no matter whether M. Maisky agrees or not. It may be that there are a number of Russian volunteers in Spain on the Government side, but nobody really knows whether this is the case. If there are Russians they will have to leave Spain in due course with other foreign volunteers.

Italy Still Amenable

Italy provided another surprise to-day when it was announced that its Government had decided to take part in the Nine Power Conference, to take place in Brussels, to discuss the China-Japan dispute, for it had been stated that Italy refused to take part in the gathering, as the invitation had been sent out by the League of Nations. This Conference now promises to be of the greatest importance, inasmuch as the United States and Italy will be represented and its influence thus considerably extended. Japan has been invited to attend the Conference, but it is doubtful whether she will accept, as it is stated in Tokyo that it is the feeling of the military party that Japan must win a decisive victory at Shanghai before entering into negotiations for peace. The invitation and its accompanying agenda is to be studied before the Japanese Government reply.

Blessings for Signor Mussolini

On the London Stock Exchange to-day Signor Mussolini, contrary to custom, was receiving blessings from the stockbrokers, as owing to his change of front regarding Spain, the markets opened buoyantly. Brokers, sensing the improvement after the preliminary canter of last night, arrived long before the official hour for opening, and at 9.30 unofficial business was being transacted on a big scale. Not for many months have the members experienced such a buoyant tone on a pay day. Prices of leading shares quickly advanced, and dealings grew with increased vigour as the morning wore on. Brokers became quite excited when it became known that the account had passed off smoothly. Advances on the day were good, but there was nothing that was very sensational. The feeling in the afternoon was that now activity has revived there is a much better outlook for the stock markets.

A Peer Leads Labour

A political surprise to-day is that the National Labour Party, during the absence abroad of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, will not be led by his son, Mr. Malcolm Macdonald, the Dominions Secretary. It was expected that Mr. Malcolm Macdonald, as holder of an important Cabinet post, would naturally be the leader, but it seems that Lord de la Warr, Lord Privy Seal, is to act in his place. The explanation is that Mr. Malcolm Macdonald told the executive of the party, before the appointment of an acting leader was considered, that he could not be a candidate, because of the heavy claims made upon him by his department. In any event, the appointment will be one for a few months only, as Mr. Ramsay Macdonald has told his supporters that he intends to resume the leadership of the National Labour Party on his return.

Eire at the British Industries Fair

For the first time the Irish Free State will have a commercial section as well as its usual official stand at the British Industries Fair. Its stands will form one of the largest sections of the Fair, which will be held from February 21 to March 4 next year. An official of the Department of Overseas Trade explained to me to-day that, in deciding on an extended commercial section, the Free State was embarking on a legitimate extension of the official stand arranged by Mr. J. W. Dulanty, Free State High Commissioner in London, in the Empire section each year, which has been such an attractive exhibit. Several Irish firms are having separate stands and displays in the Irish commercial section, which will adjoin the Empire section and be adjacent to the Free State official stand. The demand for space in the Free State's commercial display has been fairly good, a number of Irish manufacturers having already completed arrangements. One section is being arranged by a Dublin whiskey distillery, and a Cork butter firm will also occupy a leading position. I understand that some space is still available, but the department intends to close bookings at an early date.

RIGHT OF WAY TO BE MAINTAINED

Foreign Secretary on Mediterranean Policy

OPPOSITION DOUBTFUL OF ITALIAN OFFER

The Conference on Far Eastern Situation

THE debate on foreign affairs, with special reference to Spain and the war in the Far East, was opened last night in the Commons by the Foreign Secretary (Mr. Anthony Eden), with a General review of the situation and a defence of the Government's policy.

No one, he said, would belittle the significance of Italy's contribution to the cause of non-intervention.

He maintained, however, that, much as Britain desired non-intervention, there would be no indifference on the part of the British Government where it was clear that vital British interests were threatened. On this question, he said: "Our position in the Mediterranean is simply this—that we must maintain a right of way on this main arterial road. We are justified in expecting that such a right should be unchallenged."

The British Government welcomed the Brussels Conference on the Far East, and he learned that the French Foreign Minister would himself attend, and that the Italian Government was to send a delegation.

Mr. Attlee (leader of the Opposition) held that the Foreign Secretary's policy was cynical and imperialistic. Italy's proposals, he said, would have to be scanned very closely. Many people suspected that they represented only a device for wasting time. He expressed the view that with a stronger policy the invasion of China could be stopped.

Sir Archibald Sinclair (leader of the Liberals) also spoke distrustfully of the Italian gesture.

The Prime Minister replied to the debate, and the motion for the adjournment was carried.

TWO UNDECLARED WARS

In the course of his statement Mr. Eden said that in South Western Europe and the Far East two undeclared wars were raging. In the Mediterranean they had been confronted with a new phenomenon, and British shipping had suffered from acts of piracy. That was a situation which could not be allowed to continue, and the only possible safeguard was the use of such overwhelming strength as would effectively deter the pirate. It was always dangerous to offer any prophecy in present world conditions, but it was at least true that from the time of the assembly of the Nyon Conference until to-day acts of piracy against shipping in the Mediterranean had ceased.

With regard to the general international situation, it presented a less satisfactory picture; but, despite previous disappointments, the French and British Governments decided to make one more effort to refloat the Non intervention Committee, which had been virtually waterlogged for two months.

At the conclusion of the meeting on Tuesday last, he saw no alternative but to report failure, but the situation was suddenly changed by a welcome advance from Italy. Both Germany and Italy had substantially modified their previous attitude towards non intervention. He would be the last to indulge in exaggerated optimism. There were still serious problems ahead, but there was now a real chance of solving them. The next few weeks would show whether it was possible to profit by the chance.

BRITISH INTERESTS

The Government had decided to concentrate on what they could possibly do to localise the conflict in Spain, and they would also have to watch closely British interests. There would be no indifference where it was clear that vital British interests were being threatened. It was foreign intervention which had frustrated efforts at international appeasement. It would be futile to deny that until this cloud was dispersed real progress would not be possible.

If the Spanish question ceased to be, in all its strategic and political problems, the nerve centre of international politics, then it would be possible to restore the traditional amity which governed the relations of the Mediterranean Powers in the past. The Government welcomed the Three-Power Conference, which was to meet on October 30

THE FAR EAST

In the opinion of the Government, a meeting of the Powers principally concerned offered the best hope of finding a means of ending the conflict in the Far East. The French Foreign Secretary would himself attend, and the Italians were sending a delegation, whilst the United States were being represented by their Ambassador at Brussels.

It would be unwise to say what would be included, or excluded, at the Brussels Conference in advance of the meeting, but the paramount desire of everybody must be to see an end to the slaughter, suffering and the misery witnessed in China to-day. If the Conference could achieve this, it would render the greatest possible service. If it failed, they would have to enter upon new considerations, but the British Government would enter the Conference with the determination to do everything in their power to assure its success.

Dealing with the international situation in general, Mr. Eden said that he had constantly in mind, in these anxious days, the phrase which was used by Sir Thomas Inskip when speaking of the years that the locusts had eaten. "It is impossible," he said, "for our foreign policy to be other than closely related to the condition of our armaments. (Cheers.) The experience of those years should be a grim warning to us, and, more important, a grave warning to any future Government holding office in this country."

Now at length the growing strength of the nation in the field of armaments was beginning to appear, and its significance could scarcely be exaggerated. That was why he cordially welcomed the verdict of the recent Socialist Party Conference, and, if it proved to be the precursor of closer unity in other spheres, so much the better. (Hear, hear.) The verdict thus given was a real contribution to the cause of peace.

Mr. Attlee (leader of the Opposition) said that the Foreign Secretary had expressed a desire for unity in foreign affairs, but the speech he had just made had only widened the gulf existing between the Government and the Labour Party. He had never listened to such a pitiful performance. In earlier speeches the Foreign Secretary upheld the ideals of the League of Nations and the ideals of the rule of law. Now it appeared that the only thing which affected His Majesty's Government was the interest of British imperialism. Speaking of the eleventh-hour proposals put forward by Italy, he said that they must be scanned very closely. They had to consider what was behind them. If Mussolini was prepared to participate in genuine non-intervention, no one would be more pleased than the Labour Party. Proceeding, Mr. Attlee said that he was utterly opposed to the Government's foreign policy, which neglected the true way of preserving the British Empire. The only way was by preserving the peace of the world through the League of Nations. Every step taken by the Government only encouraged aggression.

Sir Archibald Sinclair (Liberal) said that there had been a serious deterioration in the international situation since the House last met. One might admire the adroit diplomacy of the Foreign Secretary, and he welcomed the holding of the Nyon Conference, but in other directions the Government was drifting, and the Spanish situation was going from bad to worse. A greater cause was at stake in Spain and the Far East than mere national interests. It was, as the President of the United States had pointed out, an issue which went to the very roots of international law, the sanctity of treaties, and our hopes of establishing a permanent peace in the world.

Mr. H. G. Strauss (Conservative) said that he quite failed to discover what cause of complaint the Labour Party had against the foreign policy of the Government, or how the Government could have acted differently than they had done. Mr. Attlee had completely misrepresented the policy of the Government.

Commander Fletcher (Labour) hoped that the Italian offer was sincere, but he would like to see some evidence of Mussolini's good faith. Signor Mussolini could give it by respecting the decencies of international law, by stopping his propaganda in Palestine, and by ceasing his bitter attacks on Britain in the Popolo d'Italia.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S REPLY

The Prime Minister (Mr. Chamberlain) replied to the debate. He said that the events of the previous day had nearly knocked the bottom out of this debate. A good many speeches had been torn up—(laughter)—and the Leader of the Opposition was compelled to make a rapid shift of ground. So, instead of taunting the Government with truckling to dictators and with weakness in not breaking off negotiations when the Italian Government did not see their way to accept the invitation to the Three-Power Conference, he had had to take different ground and throw doubt on the good faith of the Italian Government. All he could say was that, if in foreign affairs you always began with the idea that the other party was not going to hold to anything he promised, you were not likely to get far. Mr Attlee had asked in what proportion were the withdrawals of troops to take place.

He could not say how many would be so withdrawn; but, supposing it was five thousand, there was nothing unfair in that. The surplus of volunteers would remain the same. The next question asked was whether, while this withdrawal was taking place, it would be open to other Powers to go on pouring arms and munitions into Spain? That would stultify all the proceedings, and the object of this proposal was that there should be no further intervention while withdrawals were taking place. "This Government," he added, "will not consider any arrangement, satisfactory or acceptable, which allows further forces or weapons to be poured into Spain while withdrawal is taking place."

In regard to the Brussels Conference on the Far East, Mr. Chamberlain said:—The first thing we have to do is to see what means, by concerted effort, can be brought to bear in order to bring about a peaceful solution of the problem. Do not let us allow our minds to be distracted by hypothetical considerations which have not yet arisen. Let us put the whole of our efforts into seeing what co-operation we can get in the task of saving those lives which are daily being sacrificed in this terrible warfare which is going on so long.

The Opposition divided against the motion for the adjournment, but it was carried by 204 votes to 111.

Lord Plymouth made a similar statement to Mr. Eden's in the House of Lords.

LEAVING FOR NEW YORK

Three of the officers of the Irish Military Jumping Team, who are leaving to-day for New York to compete at the National Horse Show. They are: Lieutenant J. F. Neylon, Captain F. A. Aherne (officer in charge), and Lieutenant J. M. Heffernan.

All Night Battle in Shanghai

Puzzling Situation in Shantung

PANDEMONIUM again broke loose in Shanghai last night, when the Chinese launched violent attacks on all fronts. The screaming and roaring of shells from Chinese land artillery and Japanese warships, and the din of bombs from Chinese aircraft, all combined to give the city a nerve-racking night.

It is believed in Shanghai that a decisive engagement will take place before the meeting of the Brussels Conference.

The situation in the important north-eastern province of Shantung, where Japan has big interests, is developing on mystifying lines, says a Reuter Peiping telegram. The majority of the Japanese troops in the province are reported to be concentrating at Wucheng, 25 miles west of Pingyuan, on the Grand Canal, leaving the Tientsin-Nanking Railway virtually unguarded.

Meanwhile the forces of General Han Fu-chu, Governor of Shantung, are stated to have advanced northwards almost without opposition, and to be preparing to re-occupy Tehchow and Sangyuan.

Earlier there had been indications that Japan was strongly hoping he would keep his province out of the war by adopting a neutral attitude.

In Peiping the municipal authorities have ordered the disbandment of Boy Scout troops in all schools in the city.

NANKING BOMBED AGAIN

Japanese naval aeroplanes yesterday bombed military establishments and munition factories at Nanking and Pukow, according to Japanese Shanghai telegrams, says a Press Association Foreign Special telegram.

Other Japanese reports yesterday state that six American airmen recently arrived in Hong Kong, and proceeded to Hankow to join the Chinese Air Force.

It is further alleged that over a dozen Soviet flying officers who arrived in Lanchow, capital of the Province of Kansu (North-West China), by way of Sinkiang, are going on to Nanking.

Mr. Toyotaro Yuki, Governor of the Bank of Japan, in an interview in Tokyo yesterday, declared that 80 per cent. of the money to cover the cost of the war in China was spent at home.

Regarding North China, Mr. Yuki added that measures should be taken not only to attract Japanese, but also foreign, capital for economic development there.

CHEMICAL WORKS ABLAZE

Raiding the districts around Nanking yesterday, Japanese bombers flew ten miles down the river and severely bombed the chemical works at Yungli. This factory is one of the most up-to-date plants in China, turning out fertilisers for farms.

Observers aboard foreign warships report that a big fire was started by the bombing.

Other places raided yesterday included Tangyang and Changshu (to the east of the capital), the aerodromes outside the south-east gate, Pukow Railway Station (on the other side of the river to Nanking), and the Nanking-Tientsin Railway.

The Chinese official communiqué states that at one time thirty-four Japanese aeroplanes were taking part. None was shot down.

World Football Cup Match

Protest Lodged Against Irish Player

It was announced at Oslo yesterday that Mr. Johansen, the official "observer" at the World Cup Association football match between Norway and Ireland, which was played at Oslo on October 10th, had lodged a protest against the playing of the Irish centre forward, Dunne. He states that as Dunne had already played for "Northern Ireland," which is not affiliated to the F.I.F.A., he was not eligible to play in the match at Oslo.

Mr. Wickham, Secretary of the Football Association of the Irish Free State, in a statement dealing with the protest, says that Dunne is eligible according to the rules of the World Cup competition and the articles of the F.I.F.A. (See Page 11.)

THE ARANMORE DISASTER FUND

ALLOCATION OF £17.689

Details of the scheme approved by the High Court for the administration of the £17,689, Aranmore Island Disaster Fund, which was collected in public subscriptions for the dependents of the men who lost their lives in the drowning accident at Aranmore, County Donegal, on November 1, 1935, have been furnished to the trustees.

This sum is what remained on July 28, 1937, after payments had been made to meet the immediate needs of the people involved

The scheme provides for the immediate payment of different sums and the holding on trust of other sums, from which the incomes are to be paid in monthly instalments. Of these latter, parts are to be set aside separately for the children of the victims, and the trustees are empowered to use at their discretion money for the advancement of the children, and to pay the sums mentioned to them when they reach the age of 25 or if they marry before that date.

AIR CHIEF BURNED TO DEATH

The Acting Chief of the Civil Aviation Department, Dr. Alberto Arata, while piloting a machine which was undergoing its trials, was burned to death when the 'plane plunged to the earth in flames, says a Reuter Buenos Aires telegram of yesterday's date.

IS MR. DE VALERA BANNED?

NORTHERN MINISTER WILL NOT SAY

In the Northern House of Commons yesterday, Mr. N. J. Nixon (Ind. U.) asked the Minister of Home Affairs whether he could state if there was at present in force an Order under the Special Powers Act prohibiting Mr. Eamon de Valera, M.P. for South Down, and President of the Executive of the Irish Free State Parliament, from entering the Six Counties.

He also wanted to know if the Order had been withdrawn or cancelled.

Sir Dawson Bates, Minister of Home Affairs, replying, said: "It is not in the public interest to give information as to the individuals against whom Orders under the Civil Authorities Act are in force."

Mr. Nixon—Is it not a fact that it was stated here that the Order was withdrawn?

There was no reply.

ANGLO-IRISH RELATIONS

SITUATION UNCHANGED

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Malcolm Macdonald (Dominions Secretary) informed Mr. W. Lunn (Labour) and Sir Patrick Hannon (Conservative) that there were no further developments to report regarding the relations between the Irish Free State and United Kingdom Governments.

Mr. Lunn—Are we to take it that this Government is doing nothing whatever to try to bring about a solution of the difficulties between the Irish Free State and this country?

Mr. Macdonald—I think the House appreciates that the gulf between the two Governments on these questions in dispute has been wide, and it will take a good deal of bridging.

Sir Patrick Hannon—Are we to assume that any friendly gesture from the Irish Free State will be treated sympathetically by the Government?

Mr. Macdonald—Certainly.

Mr. Churchill—Let us know when it comes. (Laughter.)

SENATE BILL COMMITTEE

There was a further meeting of the Special Committee on the Senate Electoral (Panel Members) Bill at Leinster House last evening. President de Valera was in the chair, and there was a good attendance of members. The proceedings were private.

Gijon Surrenders

60,000 Troops Taken Prisoners

GIJON, the town on the North Spanish coast, which the Asturian miners made their last stronghold against General Franco, surrendered to the insurgents in dramatic circumstances yesterday, according to a Press Association Foreign Special telegram from Hendaye.

Franco sympathisers in the town—corresponding to the famous "fifth column," by which the insurgents hope to take Madrid—seized the broadcasting headquarters, and at 10 o'clock yesterday morning an excited voice came over the air from Radio Gijon:—"Viva Espana," it said. "Viva Franco . . . Franco . . . Franco . . . Arriba Espana."

"Arriba Espana" is the battlecry of General Franco's men.

Whole battalions are stated to have surrendered to the insurgents, and one report estimates that 60,000 troops have either surrendered, been taken prisoner or been surrounded.

LAST STRONGHOLD

With the fall of Gijon the Government have lost their last stronghold in North-West Spain, says Reuter.

The surrender of Gijon completes the steady insurgent advance along the Basque and Asturian coast, during which San Sebastian, Bilbao and Santander have successively fallen.

Gijon is the largest town in Asturias, with the exception of Oviedo.

The station then broadcast a message to Salamanca, General Franco's headquarters, announcing the surrender of the town.

Falangists (Spanish Fascists), who had lain low in Gijon while the insurgents battled through the mountain fastnesses of Asturias, came into the open early yesterday, after receiving news that the attackers were only a few miles off.

They knew, too, that emissaries had been sent by the Socialist leaders to General Solchaga's headquarters to treat for the surrender of the town.

Aided by Civil Guards and Assault Guards, and joined by discontented elements of the extreme Left wing, they struck their first blow at 8 a.m.

Details of the fighting are not yet known, but it is reported that in the two hours that ensued before the "surrender" message was broadcast they had gained the mastery of the town.

The main body of the insurgent troops are expected to enter Gijon this morning.

OVIEDO

Simultaneously, the siege of Oviedo, the biggest city in Asturias, invested almost since the outbreak of the civil war, has collapsed. Insurgent forces pressing Gijon are reported to have made contact with their beleaguered comrades in the city.

It was officially announced from Burgos last afternoon that almost the entire army of Asturian miners which held the northern front of the siege of Oviedo had surrendered to the insurgents

The short-wave station at Gijon was destroyed by Government troops before it could be seized.

Last afternoon it was announced from Salamanca that Gijon was quiet, and that there had been no general incendiarism as had been feared.

When the position seemed hopeless there was a general exodus by boat.

INSURGENT WARSHIPS

It is officially announced that during the night insurgent warships captured twelve trawlers and fishing boats heading for France, forty miles from Gijon.

THE PENULTIMATE STAGE

Broadcasting last night, an announcer from Radio Nacional (Insurgent) said:—"The liberation of Gijon is the penultimate stage of the civil war. The last stage will not be long. Therefore, have courage and patience."

A number of important political leaders are stated to have been among the crowd of refugees on board these vessels.

There must be several hundrds of intransigent Basque Separatists, who, having first fled to San Sebastian fourteen months ago, gradually made their way from town to town down the Biscay, Galician and Asturian coast, via Bilbao and Santander.

THE REFUGEES

Finally they have found themselves at a dead end at Gijon, of which the population is estimated now to be over a quarter of a million.

Many of General Franco's Carlist troops are actively pursuing the masses of refugees and fleeing troops south of Gijon towards the Port of Aviles, at the eastern end of the peninsula. This marks the furthest limit of Government territory in the North of Spain.

With Oviedo liberated after a siege of fifteen months, the only centre of resistance is the mining basin between Oviedo and Pajares, to the South.

Three British warships are now believed to be cruising off the coast of Asturias. They are the cruiser Southampton and the destroyers Foxhound and Fearless.

Yesterday the bay of St. Jean de Luz, which is the base of the warships operating off North Spain, was deserted.

Three of the aeroplanes which brought refugee leaders from Gijon to Biarritz have left to-day for Barcelona, via Toulouse, having been authorised by the French Government to do so.

DISSIDENT BASQUES

According to the Presse de Bayonne the undaunted President Aguirre, of the Basque Government, which is still officially in existence, is at present in Valencia, where he is negotiating for a mass emigration of dissident Basques to Chile, Colombia and Venezuela.

Several hundreds of Basques have already gone to Chile and Mexico, and heavy advance bookings are understood to have been made on Royal Mail steamers, ships of the French Line, Chargeurs, Reunis and other liners.

ITALY AND NON-INTERVENTION

GAYDA'S WARNING NOTE

While expressing satisfaction at the measure of agreement reached in the Non-Intervention Committee, Señor Virginio Gayda, the mouthpiece of Mussolini, yesterday uttered a warning against too much optimism, says a Reuter Rome telegram.

"British newspapers have abandoned themselves to hosannas of praise over the Italian move. They hasten to foretell the return of fine weather after the recent dark clouds.

"We shall not abandon ourselves without restraint to so much optimism. The experience of these difficult days of non-intervention teach us to be doubtful of to-morrow even when to-day is promising.

"There has been a continuous intervention of more or less mysterious forces which conflict every moment with the aims and policies of Government and create difficulties and misunderstandings at every move towards practical action."

TERRORIST SPIRIT IN PALESTINE

SIR CHARLES TEGART'S POST

TO ADVISE ON ADMINISTRATION

SIR CHARLES TEGART, it was announced by Mr. Ormsby Gore, Secretary for the Colonies, in the House of Commons yesterday, has agreed to go to Palestine to advise on administration. Sir Charles was formerly Police Commissioner of Calcutta.

Several unsuccessful attempts have been made on his life.

The son of an Irish clergyman, Sir Charles joined the Indian police in 1901, and became known as a fearless officer who would carry out any duty, however dangerous, with coolness and tact.

He did valuable work in dealing with extremists in India in the years before his retirement in 1931. He had a number of narrow escapes at the hands of fanatics, who regarded him as their special enemy owing to his vigilance and capacity for tracking down criminals.

SIR CHARLES TEGART.

In 1923 he was the intended target for a bullet which wounded a young Englishman named Day.

He had frequently been shot at while engaged in preventing agitators from landing arms in India.

In 1930 he had a lucky escape when two bombs were thrown at his car in a crowded Calcutta street.

A skilled organiser, Sir Charles is a brilliant detective and linguist. He was at one time at Scotland Yard. It was at one time rumoured that Sir Charles was to be Commissioner of Police in succession to Viscount Byng. He has been a member of the Council of India.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL SHOT

Incidents reported yesterday indicate that the terrorist spirit of defiance still is rife in and around Jerusalem, says a Press Association Foreign Special telegram.

A Cambridge M.A., Avinoam Yellin Mboma, Senior Inspector of Jewish Schools in the Government Department of Education, was yesterday shot by an unknown assailant as he was entering his office at Mount Zion, under the shadow of the old city wall. He was rushed to hospital in a critical condition. His assailant, whom he described as wearing a tarbush, escaped.

The inspector was a close friend of the English-Jewish Professor Billig, who was shot dead in Jerusalem in August last year during firing on a Jewish suburb near Government House. They were co-authors of a text-book on Arabic studies.

Shots were fired and stones thrown at a 'bus on the main road to Jaffa, about five miles from Jerusalem, last afternoon. One of the windows of the 'bus was smashed, and four Jewish passengers were slightly injured by splinters of glass.

The Government's latest punitive measures include the imposition of a collective fine and the establishment of a punitive police post consisting of an inspector and twenty constables. This post is being maintained at the expense of the inhabitants of Gaza, following the discovery of a bomb on the railway line on Monday.

THE MUFTI

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Ormsby Gore (Colonial Secretary), in reply to Mr. Tom Williams (Labour, Don Valley), gave a review of the Palestine situation. He said that the Mufti, who had concealed himself in the Haram, had now escaped to Syria, where he was at present under the surveillance of the Syrian authorities.

"I am sure that the House will agree," said Mr. Ormsby Gore, "that the immediate and primary duty of the Palestine Government is to take the most vigorous measures to combat terrorism, protect the lives of its officers, and to restore the effective authority of the British administration throughout Palestine."

NORTHERN HOUSE ADJOURNS

PROTESTS BY MEMBERS

HIGH PERCENTAGE OF UNEMPLOYMENT

GOVERNMENT CALLED POLITICAL DRONES

THE adjournment of the Northern House of Commons until the 9th November was moved yesterday by Captain H. Dixon, Chief Government Whip.

Mr. T. Henderson (Ind. U.) said that he wanted to protest against this proposal being made at a time when there were thousands starving in Northern Ireland. It was a deliberate attempt to prevent members raising their voices in protest against this state of affairs.

A DICTATORSHIP

The action proposed was preposterous, in view of the fact that they had only been sitting a few weeks.

The Government, he added, were the greatest political drones in existence.

Mr. J. Beattie (Labour) asked was there any closer approach to dictatorship than this suggestion that they should now adjourn. If this was a democratic Government why did they absent themselves from Parliament for nearly nine months in the year, and allow the civil servants to dictate to them? Some day they would be told by the officials they were not wanted at all. He was not surprised that the Government's own friends were now condemning them for their inactivity.

STARVING PEOPLE

Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C. (Nationalist), expressed his dissatisfaction at the complacency with which the Government were now adjourning. He remarked that the Government did not seem to realise the condition of affairs in Northern Ireland at present. It did not seem to concern them that there were between sixty and seventy thousand people starving in their midst. This was looked upon almost as the routine state of things.

"We have," he added, "a percentage of unemployed, which is twice the percentage of every other area of importance in the United Kingdom. This cloud of unemployment has been hanging over this province, heavy and frowning, for the past sixteen years, and no one can say that he sees the least blink of a blue sky appearing."

NO PARADISE

In Northern Ireland they were outside the "gulf stream" of immense public wealth that was being poured into the distressed areas in England. There were no new industries in Northern Ireland, and, despite unemployment, the Government were "strutting about like peacocks, as if this was a paradise." The man in the street knew it was no paradise. He knew there was a vast amount of distress and poverty. The Government would not face stark, stern reality, and no serious effort was being made to grapple with the situation.

Mr. W. J. Nixon (Independent U.) said, now that the Government had brought in a bill to raise the salary of one man (the County Court Judge of Tyrone), and another to give £200.000 more to a contractor, they had done all that they wanted to and could now adjourn. Perhaps they thought themselves justified in doing so, but in view of the fact that they had the highest percentage of unemployed in Britain—22.2 per cent. being idle compared with 10.2 in Britain—he thought the House should remain open to see if the Government could find a remedy for this state of affairs.

MINISTER'S REPLY

Mr. J. M. Andrews (Minister of Finance)—Our legislative programme is finished, and we could only remain open to carry on debates. It would be, indeed, undignified to turn this Parliament into a debating society. Words could not, and would not, cure the unemployment problem. Unemployment is beyond the reach of this Parliament to deal with, because many of the causes are international. The war between China and Japan has caused a regrettable setback to the linen trade in this area, but we cannot control this. We want to do what we can for the unemployed, but words alone cannot solve the problem.

Mr. Nixon—Hear, hear; I am glad to hear that.

Mr. Andrews—I am glad also to hear the member say "Hear, hear," but I certainly would not like to see this House turned into a debating society.

Mr. Henderson—Would you not turn it into a hospital for tuberculosis children?

PROTEST AGAINST A SPEECH

Mr. Nixon rose again, and producing a newspaper began to read an extract of a speech made by a chaplain of the House on a political platform.

The Speaker advised Mr. Nixon to cut out the extract, and he could then read it.

Continuing, Mr. Nixon said the Church of Ireland chaplain, who was an official of the House, had appeared on a platform with the Minister of Finance, and after saying that he stood behind his friend, John Andrews, went on to attack members of the House on the opposite side, and referred to them as "traitors."

"I will not stand for that," said Mr. Nixon. It was completely out of order for a chaplain to attack members of the House and call them traitors, especially as he himself had changed his religion

A DISTRESSED AREA

MINISTER REPLIES TO A SUGGESTION

Earlier in the sitting, Mr. J. M. Andrews, Minister of Finance, replying to Mr. J. Beattie (Lab.), said: The question whether Northern Ireland should be declared a distressed area is one not for the British Government, but for this Government to determine. The Government believed that such a course would be most injurious to the interests of the workers and industries in Northern Ireland generally, and would give an entirely erroneous impression of their economic position, for, notwithstanding the regrettable high rate of unemployment prevailing at present, the volume of employment had been steadily growing.

He would like to point out that Liverpool was not a special area, and yet the percentage of unemployment there was higher than in Belfast.

MISS BATTEN'S PROGRESS

RECORD FLIGHT NOW POSSIBLE

With 15½ hours already lopped off Mr. H. F. Broadbent's record, and ahead of her own schedule, Miss Jean Batten landed at Karachi from Allahabad at 7.10 p.m. to-day (1.40 p.m. London time) on her Australia-London solo flight, says a Reuter Karachi telegram.

She is setting off again at 3 a.m. to-morrow (9.30 to-night London time) for Basra, her next stop.

Her time from Port Darwin, Northern territory, Australia, to Karachi, was 2 days, 16 hours, 10 mins.

On leaving Allahabad at 12.05 p.m. local time (6.35 a.m. London time) yesterday she was 15 hours 35 minutes ahead of Broadbent's time on his record flight from Australia to England in the spring of this year.

Broadbent, however, lost several hours through having to turn back to Rangoon owing to bad weather.

To beat Broadbent's record of 6 days, 8 hours, 25 minutes, Miss Batten will have to reach England by 5.55 a.m. next Monday.

Jean Batten left Karachi for Basra at 3.17 a.m., local time.—(Reuter.)

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

MR. EDEN'S REVIEW

The Times observes in a leading article to-day:—In these days there is no holiday season for international unrest. When the Labour leaders, in default of an earlier resumption of the session, asked for a full-dress debate upon foreign policy, they intended, it was said, to devote themselves chiefly to the developments in the Far East, which had stirred public feeling so deeply in this country, and to urge that the British Government should take the lead in bringing economic pressure to bear upon Japan. It is the unexpected turn in the negotiations to secure the withdrawal of foreign combatants that has made Spain, rather than the Far East, the immediate centre of public interest. Moreover, the advance made towards agreement has justified the patience with which, in spite of every discouragement, the Government have clung to the hope of insulating the Spanish conflict, and has taken the sting out of the Opposition charge that the Government had allowed non-intervention to become a one-sided farce.

As for the Far East, since the debate was planned the Government have succeeded in arranging, with American cooperation, for a conference of the nine Powers signatory to the Washington Treaty. The object of this conference, which is to meet at Brussels on October 30, is to promote peace by mediation, a purpose which cannot be promoted by violent attacks upon Japan or by clamours for an economic boycott. Thus, all the circumstances of the debates were unpropitious for a smashing onslaught upon Government policy.

Mr. Eden drew, as he had drawn in another recent speech, adds The Times, a sharp distinction between non-intervention and indifference. There would be no indifference, he assured the House, where vital British interests were threatened. The restraint which had marked Mr. Eden's speech was not altogether observed by Mr. Attlee and the other Opposition speakers. They seized upon the success of the Nyon Conference as proof that any results could be achieved when Great Britain took a firm stand in conjunction with other Powers. They deplored that this firmness was shown only when British shipping or some other concrete British interest was concerned, and not employed to defend the principles of the League of Nations and the doctrine of collective security. The distinction which he had drawn between non-intervention in the internal affairs of Spain and indifference to vital British interests was twisted to imply a cynical disregard for international morality. They felt compelled to express the hope that Count Grandi's proposals might result in real progress, but they were full of doubts and suspicions. In the Far East they wanted pressure, not mediation, and generally they wanted the Government to maintain peace by risking war all over the world.

Lord Halifax, who was stating the Government case at the same moment with great distinction in the House of Lords, had some wise and conciliatory words to say on the heavy responsibility which lay on those who were directing the foreign policy of this country, and the Prime Minister finally disposed of the Opposition argument that this foreign policy was either non-existent or unintelligible just because the Foreign Secretary was not perpetually reiterating his love of peace and his belief in the League of Nations.

MORE DUBLIN STRIKES

PLUMBERS CEASE WORK

STATEMENT BY THE CORPORATION

THE following statement was issued last night by the Acting City Manager and Town Clerk of Dublin:—

"The plumbers employed by the Dublin Corporation have this morning taken strike action. The facts relating to the strike are that the Corporation has received two documents regarding plumbers' wages. One is a copy of the 'Headings for Resumption of Work' (as a result of which the recent building trades strike was concluded) agreed between the Saorstát Eireann Federation of Building Trades Employers and by the Dublin Trades Council and Building Trades Group. This states that the rate for plumbers is 1s. 11¼d. per hour. The other document is signed by the President and Secretary of the Saorstát Association of Master Plumbers, Heating and Ventilating Engineers, and by the President and Secretary of the Plumbers', Glaziers' and Domestic Engineers' Union Dublin and District Commitee. This states that the rate for plumbers shall be 2s. 0½d. per hour.

"In reply to a query from the Corporation to the Department of Industry and Commerce, as to the rate payable to plumbers in Dublin, the Department on the 18th instant enclosed a copy of the first document referred to above, and stated:—

"'This is the only agreement as regards plumbers' wages in the City of Dublin and the administrative County of Dublin negotiated under the auspices of this Department in connection with the recent stoppage of work in the building trade in Dublin.'

"In a letter to the Plumbers', Glaziers' and Domestic Engineers' Union on the 20th instant it was stated on behalf of the Corporation that it was prepared to pay the rate fixed as the standard one in Dublin for plumbers, and that, having regard to the terms of the letter from the Department of Industry and Commerce, the Corporation was not in a position to pay plumbers a rate in excess of 1s. 11¼d. per hour.

"It is possible that the citizens of Dublin may suffer inconvenience as a result of the withdrawal of plumbing labour, but the Corporation will endeavour to maintain as far as possible the public services affected by the stoppage.

"The Secretary of the Plumbers' Union has indicated to the Borough Surveyor that his Union would consider cases of special hardship that might arise (such as interruption in water supplies to hospitals and similar institutions), with a view to allowing essential work to be carried out."

280 HANDS WALK OUT

According to a statement of the management of Messrs. Clarnico-Murray, Ltd., manufacturing confectioners, approximately 280 workers are involved in the present stoppage in the factory.

It appears that a week's notice of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union's intention to withdraw the staff was served on the firm by the Rathfarnham Branch of the Union. The management was requested to take action against the four workers who had failed to pay their arrears of subscriptions to the Union, but no action was taken, as it is the policy of the firm to maintain a position of neutrality on such questions.

The management state that the stoppage will not affect the firm's trade generally, nor the special Christmas trade, but goods in the course of manufacture will be damaged.

STRUGGLE WITH ARMED MEN

BELFAST STREET SCENE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

James McNulty, aged 24 years, of Milford street, Falls road, Belfast, was returning home from work to-night, accompanied by a man named Cornelius Fox, and when he reached the corner of his own street four men appeared and stopped them.

The men produced revolvers, and after ordering Fox to "clear off," attacked McNulty. A struggle followed for some time, and eventually McNulty managed to break away from his assailants and ran home, with his clothes torn and blood streaming from one arm.

He was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where it was found that his injuries were not so serious as to require detention, and after treatment he was allowed to go home.

The affair caused considerable police activity.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN

TWO VIEWS AT A DUBLIN DEBATE

The view that romance was going out of life as a result of the increasing employment of women was put forward for consideration by Mr. D. Binnie, who opened a debate in the Presbyterian Association, Dublin, last night on the proposition "That the employment of women in industry is detrimental to the employment of men."

By industry, said Mr. Binnie, he meant the sale of goods as well as their production, and he included such work as teaching schools. He traced the introduction of women into what hitherto had been men's jobs during the war years, even into such positions as railway booking clerks, porters and tram conductors. Man must remain, as he always had been, the principal worker and breadwinner, and he could not think that his being ousted by woman was a good thing for the world at large. Mr. Binnie criticised the fact that more men were not employed in the Hospitals' Sweepstakes. There were many young men unable to find employment who could do the work now done by women in the Sweepstakes, he felt sure. It had been his experience in industry that women were not terribly keen on acting or thinking for themselves.

COMPETITION WELCOMED

Mr. J. E. Oliver said that women were only coming into their own. They are forging ahead in every field they had entered. He welcomed their competition, and said that rivalry between the sexes would make them better men. Women had got to live the same as men. Many of them to-day were the main support of their families. He disagreed with the suggestion that romance was already dead.

A number of other speakers also took part in the debate.

ABDUCTION OF GIRL ALLEGED

CIRCUS EMPLOYE REMANDED

At Foxford yesterday Harry Hensley (30), an employe of Hickenberg's Circus, was remanded in custody, charged with abducting Laura Normaer, thirteen years old, described as an acrobat. An information had been sworn by her father.

Our Ballina Correspondent states that an exciting motor chase by Ballina Guards from Ballina via Sligo to Black Line, County Cavan, ended late on Wednesday night in the capture of Hensley and the girl.

They were brought back to Ballina, and when the couple were being parted there was a painful scene.

Imports of tea rose from 15,426,619lbs. in 1936 to 17,491,010lbs. in 1937, and the price also increased from £1,034,750 to £1,270,943. There was an increase in imports of porter, beer and ale of from 86,443 barrels to 102,224, representing an increase in price of £48,612. There has been an increase in the value of greyhounds sent out of this country of from £21,877 to £36,033, while pigs fell in value from £287,903 to £91,642, there being a decrease from 78,638 animals to 24,445. AGRICULTURAL WAGES BOARD

T.D. RESIGNS MEMBERSHIP

Mr. Cornelius Meany, T.D. for North Cork, has resigned his membership of the Agricultural Wages Board. His letter of resignation has been in the hands of the Board for a fortnight, but up to the present no one has been appointed in his place. The filling of the vacancy rests with the Minister for Agriculture (Dr. Ryan).

Mr. Meany's reasons for his resignation are not stated. It is probable that he finds the work of attending to the affairs of the Board to make too great a demand upon his time. When he was first appointed he was not a member of the Dail, but as he was returned for North Cork at the July election, he probably finds it necessary to devote all his attention to the interests of his constituents.

IRISH FILM SOCIETY

The Advisory Council of the Irish Film Society held its first meeting of the 1937-38 season on Tuesday in the Moira Hotel.

Those present included the four directors—Messrs. Edward Toner, Liam O Laoghaire, Sean O Meadhra and P. J. Fitzsimons—and the following members of the Advisory Council—Miss T. J. Beere, Mrs. May Carey, Lady Glenavy, Mr. G. Dalton, Professor Felix Hackett, Dr. Lloyd Praeger and Mr. District Justice Reddin.

The meeting discussed the policy and programme of the Society for the season. The Secretary pointed out that the membership was steadily increasing, and attached considerable importance to the number of new members, which included a member of the Government and one of the leading members of the film trade. This augured well for the co-operation of all interests to the ultimate benefit of film in Ireland.

The Society's exclusive programme was discussed, and it was hoped that all members would be able to attend the meeting of the Society on Sunday, the 24th inst., at the Peacock Theatre, when an interesting illustrated survey of the German film from its earliest beginnings would be given.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"ARISTOCRATS AND POMERANIANS"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your report of the County Dublin Board of Health meeting in to-day's issue, you attribute certain remarks about "Aristocrats and Pomeranians" at Castle terrace to Mr. P. J. Fogarty, T.D.

I would like to point out that the canine population of this terrace consists of one greyhound and one mongrel, and that we can only boast of one motor car between us. However, now that our acts of sabotage against the water supply have been discovered and the tumbrils are about to take us to guillotine, we have at least the consolation of knowing that we will have with us the Parish Priest and the dispensary doctor to minister to our needs, spiritual and bodily, on our last sad journey.—Yours, etc.,

MALAHIDE WATER SUPPLY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—On Monday last, 18th October, you were good enough to publish some remarks of mine about the Malahide water supply. Lest an injustice be done and financial loss occur to the Grand Hotel, Malahide, I would like it to be known that the hotel has its own private water supply, coming from properly bricked-in and tested wells.

The favour of publication would be much appreciated.—Yours, etc.,

HARRY MICHAEL.

"CHAMBER OF HORRORS"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—I see, under the above title, in the "Irishman's Diary" of to-day, some kind references to a recent handbook on the uglification of Dublin; you wonder whether copies are still available. As editor of the handbook in question may I say that the "Cautionary Guide to Dublin," which was its title, was published by the Royal Institute of the Architects of Ireland in 1933, with a second edition in 1934. It was virtually given away by the institute for the nominal sum of sixpence, and the second edition ought still to be obtainable from booksellers, and is certainly to be procured at the printers, "The Sign of the Three Candles," 6 Fleet street. Those who prefer first editions can still obtain them from the Royal Institute of Architects of Ireland, 8 Merrion square, for sixpence; or, post free, eightpence.—Yours, etc.,

A PROTEST

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your issue of 21st October you say: "We notice that Lynn Doyle has been addressing a luncheon club in Manchester, and that he has not hesitated to denigrate the culinary accomplishments of his fellow-countrywomen."

I did not, at first, intend to protest. With sadness I realised that I had come to that time of life when it was doubtful whether any woman in Ireland would care whether I denigrated her for her cooking or celebrated her for her charms. Yet there is, I am willing to believe, one. Moreover, I live with her. My mortal sustenance is the daily work of her hands, or, at least, of her brain. For the continuance of my mortal happiness, and, perhaps (for an outraged cook is a terrible thing, and wields appalling powers), to the salutary retardation of my other-worldly reward, perhaps you will print below what I really did say in Manchester—and bear in mind that my intention was rather to divert than to instruct:—

"In my own country of Ireland we neglected cooking far too long. It was the cause of all our woe. For centuries we raised the best food in Europe and cooked it like Hottentots. And the burly and beef-eating Saxon held us down in consequence. If England had put a duty on Irish cattle five hundred years ago, we would have filled our selves with our own beef and come over and taken possession of the whole of Britain.

"We didn't learn to cook till lately, because for centuries we had no beef to practise on, and so neglected the art. If Brian Boru had only left a copy of Mrs. Beeton's cookery book behind him in his tent, it would have been a greater thing for Ireland than the winning of the battle of Clontarf.

"Now we are awakening, more and more, in Ireland to the value of good cooking. Every year we are inducing more and more of you to visit Ireland. We are awakening to the value of our beautiful land as a national asset, and we are not relying on scenery alone. Our cooking will soon be the best in the Three Kingdoms. Our porter is breaking on your shores in ever-increasing waves. The roast beef of old England really came from the plains of Meath and Tipperary."

I ask you, sir, are these the words of a denigrator of his native country?—Yours, etc.,

LYNN DOYLE.

CHURCH OF IRELAND CONGREGATIONS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have been following with amused impatience the correspondence which has been appearing under the heading, "Church of Ireland Congregations," and wondering how the deep interest in the welfare of the Church professed by the writers is to be reconciled with their inexcusable ignorance with regard to elementary facts in connection with her organisation. These facts have been expounded again and again in the General Synod, and are available in pamphlet form at the A.P.C.K. at the cost of one penny. May I save "Churchman" and "J. C. K." that expenditure by explaining to them that the functions of the Representative Body are strictly limited by the Charter under which it was created under the Irish Church Act, and that it has no power without breaking the law to do what they desire? It is in the position of Trustee to the Church of Ireland, and may only administer the money in its hands in accordance with the terms of the trusts, or, in the case of funds to which no specific trusts are attached, in accordance with the directions of the General Synod. If "Churchman" and "J. C. K." left a large sum in trust for the benefit of "X" parish, would they be satisfied if the trustee, moved by the ruinous condition of the church in "Y" parish, applied the money to the repair of "Y's" roof? Yet that is precisely the way in which they demand that the Representative Body should act.

To-day's contributions to the correspondence are, however, without any amusing side, and have made me realise that it is time for a little plain speaking.

Some time ago the Bishop of Ossory in an address to his Synod attempted to compare the spiritual condition of his diocese under the present difficult conditions with its condition in the pre-war days, and, if figures mean anything, he showed that there exists to-day every evidence of a strong spiritual life among the laity and vigorous spiritual leadership on the part of the clergy. Ask any of the deputation secretaries of our great societies who travel Ireland from end to end, and you will find them full of admiration for the courage and self-sacrifice of the clergy and laity throughout the country districts of the Free State.

The clergy of the Church of Ireland are, none of them, perfect, and it is possible that "An Old Churchman" and "A Southern Churchman" may have been particularly unfortunate in their spiritual pastor, but I should like to remind them that slanderous statements made under cover of anonymity, not against an individual who would have his remedy, but in vague, general terms against a large body of men, are evidence of a temper which if it were widespread in the Church of Ireland would bring her to ruin far more quickly than any defects in administration.—Yours, etc.,

ERNEST M. BATEMAN.

Appeal Dismissed.—An appeal at the Cork Circuit Court yesterday on behalf of Timothy Lordan, cattle dealer, Oliver Plunkett street, Cork, against the conviction of the District Justice at Cork fining him 40s. and 21s. costs for drunkenness while in charge of a motor car, 40s. for dangerous driving and disqualification for twelve months, was dismissed.

MR. T. P. BUTLER AND MISS DAVIDSON-HOUSTON

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Thursday.

The marriage took place at the Royal Military Chapel, Wellington Barracks, London, to-day, of Mr. Thomas Pierce Butler, of the Grenadier Guards, only son of Sir Richard Butler, Bart., and Lady Butler, of Ballintemple, County Carlow, and Miss Rosemary Liege Woodgate Davidson-Houston, daughter of Major and Mrs. Davidson-Houston, of Pembury Hall, Kent, and Thurloe square, London.

The chapel was decorated with white flowers, and the Band of the Grenadier Guards played for the ceremony.

Bishop Plunket, who is an uncle of the bridegroom, was to have officiated, but through ill-health was unable to do so. The Rev. A. J. Wilcox, Chaplain to the Brigade of Guards, acted in his stead. "St. Patrick's Breastplate" was among the hymns sung, and while the register was signed the choir sang the anthem, "O, for the wings of a dove."

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a gown of rich ivory satin fashioned on classical lines, with a long train extending from the hem of the skirt. A billowy veil of ivory tulle was held in place by a halo of real orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of stephanotis and lilies of the valley. Her sole ornament was a necklace of pearls.

ANNUAL DINNER IN DUBLIN

ANNIVERSARY OF THE FAMOUS BATTLE

NEARLY 100 members of the Royal Naval Old Comrades' Association (Irish Area) attended the first annual dinner of the Association, which was held in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, last night.

In the unavoidable absence of the President, Commander H. B. Pollock, D.S.O., the chair was taken by Vice-Admiral A. Craig-Waller, C.B., R.N. (Ret.), Patron of the Association.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar, and a feature of the dinner was the large model of the "Victory," Lord Nelson's famous ship, which stood at one end of the room. The ship flew the signal, "England expects . . . ." exactly as it was hoisted on board the "Victory" when going into action.

The flag of the Dublin Branch was also displayed.

THE TOASTS

Toasts of "The King" and "Ireland" were honoured.

The Chairman said that it was very heartening to find that the Association had grown so rapidly, and that the members were so actively supporting it. It was a splendid thing that there should be an Association of old seamen in Dublin. He paid a high tribute to Mr. P. McGuire, R.N., the hon. secretary, and mentioned that it was very appropriate that the dinner should be held on the anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar.

Proposing the toast of "R.N., Army, Air Force and Merchant Marine," Commander J. C. Colvill, R.N. (retired), coupled with the Army the name of Major J. S. Myles, T.D.

Replying, Major Myles said that he had never before realised what a great number of navy men there were around Dublin. A dinner such as that was a great thing

Captain J. H. Webb, O.B.E. R.N.R., Harbourmaster, Dublin, proposed the toast of "The Guests."

In the Irishman's Diary of the Irish Times—the principal newspaper in the country—said Captain Webb, he had read that the citizens of Dublin were not going to throw bouquets at Nelson's Pillar, but that "a lot of old sailors were going to congregate on Nelson's night." (Laughter.)

After welcoming Sir Haldane Porter, Captain Webb, referring to the Lord Mayor of Dublin, said—

"The Lord Mayor is not a guest to-night. Under a charter of King John he is Admiral of the Port of Dublin." Captain Webb's statement was received with applause.

The Association, he said, was a leading force in the world and it wanted every support.

Replying, Sir Haldane Porter said that he represented Lord Iveagh, co-patron, who was unavoidably prevented from being present.

LORD MAYOR'S REPLY

The Lord Mayor of Dublin, who also replied, congratulated the Association on the numbers of its membership and on the Dublin branch's achievement in opening club-rooms in Dublin, where old friends could meet and exchange reminiscences. It was to be hoped that the less fortunate of the navy men would never be forgotten. He had some little connection with the sea, he said, and added, amid laughter, that he had been born near the North Wall. His father, he said, had been a seagoing engineer. He was always ready, he concluded, to give a helping hand to any of the less fortunate naval men in Dublin, and he knew that if he could not help them he could confidently send them to Captain Webb.

Proposing the toast of "The Association," Mr. P. McGuire, R.N., hon. secretary, mentioned that there were a number of unemployed men in the Association, and he appealed to other members to let him know when they had a vacant position.

Commander A. P. Gillespie, R.D., R.N.R. (retired) proposed the toast of the Chairman. Vice-Admiral Craig Waller replied, and expressed deep regret that he was leaving Ireland.

There was an enjoyable musical programme.

Cork Rate Collectors.—In connection with the proposed appointment of temporary rate collectors for four areas, a letter was read at Cork County Council yesterday from the Minister for Local Government, intimating that there was no reason to make temporary appointments; directing that permanent appointments be deferred until next year, and that this year's collection in those areas be made through the office.

FATHER MATHEW PLAYERS

On Sunday night, and also on the following Sunday, the Father Mathew Players open their autumn season with Sean O'Casey's "The Shadow of a Gunman." Their production of this play won them the premier award at the Father Mathew Feis Dramatic Festival this year, and the cast is practically unchanged, so that the audience are assured of entertainment of the high standard usually associated with the hall.

The central part, that of Seamus Shields, into which O'Casey has packed all the fruits of his close observation of Dubliners, is taken by that experienced radio and stage star, Mr. P. McCann.

On the same occasion will be produced a new comedy by Mr. P. McCann, entitled "William." This will bring back to the Father Mathew Hall stage Mr. Billie Harmon (Eddie), and opposite him plays Mr. Paddy Henry (as John).

The showing of films in the hall has been suspended temporarily, and an endeavour will be made to continue the dramatic programme right through the winter.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

FIVE FAVOURITES WIN

'Chasing in Thick Fog: Narrow Victory of Silver Bow II.

SANDOWN, Thursday Night.

THE Sandown Park National Hunt programme to-day was run through in a thick fog to the great disappointment of a big crowd. When the executive saw the heavy mist descend in the forenoon they took the gamble of deciding to put back racing by half an hour.

The sun came out soon after the decision and gradually the curtain lifted. It never cleared off, however, and at no stage could more than one hurdle and one fence be clearly seen. So the view of racing was confined to less than a quarter of a mile, and spectators had very quickly to make up their minds as to how their fancies were going in the last dash to the winning post. Still most of them would go home well satisfied since the first five favourites won.

The executive decided to have only twenty-five minutes intervals between races, but this did not work out too well. Jumping events take a good deal longer than on the flat. The going was hard, but there were plenty of runners in nearly all the events, and what could be seen of the sport was consistently good.

A Great Finish

There was one finish during the day which made up in large measure for all the disappointments that had been caused by the fog. It was the Cholmondeley Steeplechase. As the runners loomed up out of the mist Silver Bow II. had a clear lead. He was probably two lengths in front of Jackfish, with Timber Wolf and Frobisher in handy positions.

No sooner had Silver Bow II. taken the last fence than his lead was at once challenged—not by one merely of the others mentioned, but by all three.

A terrific finish then took place. Timber Wolf obtained a good neck advantage over Silver Bow II., with Frobisher and Jackfish still ploddong away.

Most of the favourite's backers had given up their money as lost when Mr. P. Herbert, riding with fine skill and with much strength, rallied Silver Bow II., who closed with Timber Wolf and got his head in front again a stride from the post.

Reg Hobbs, trainer of Battleship, did not saddle the horse, because he thought the going a little too firm. Delaneige jumped splendidly, but had not enough speed to take part in the finish.

Beaten on the Flat

Feud beat O'Grady with surprising ease on the flat, when the Norbiton Hurdle was decided. Between the last two jumps the race was obviously confined to this pair and Mesmerist, who was going comfortably behind them.

Feud dashed to the last obstacle with a slight lead, and, with O'Grady tiring, Mesmerist got up in the last stride to gain second place by a short-head.

As Feud and O'Grady were the two best-backed candidates, punters once more had a cheerful sort of finish to watch, even if they could not see anything of the rest of the race.

The field was well strung out after the first three. Mixed Foursome fell at the first hurdle and raced back to the paddock. Godolphin ran well for most of the journey.

Elmstead put up a great performance to win the Pribright Handicap Hurdle under 12st. 7lb. He started favourite at 4 to 1, so followers of first market choices were here able to trade at a generous price.

Won on the Post

Pellerin, with Elmstead's big weight in mind, conserved the energy of his mount, and did not ask him to do an ounce more than was necessary. He allowed Silver Ann to lead him over the last hurdle, and waited until the last moment to slip Elmstead to the front and win by a neck.

Negrier also came with the late run, and was only a head behind Silver Ann at the finish. Durex once looked as if he might have a chance as he came to the last hurdles. He then began to lose ground, but he may be worth remembering.

This completed a double for W. Nightingall, who had previously won with Silver Bow II.

It was the Amateur Riders' Handicap Steeplechase which supplied the only beaten favourite. This was Irish Vein, who failed to complete the course.

Santa Luz came over the last fence with a lead of four or five lengths from Top Toi. It then seemed to be all over, but Santa Luz could not hang on to his lead. Top Toi put up a fine effort up the final hill, and came home a comfortable winner.

Harlequin's Canter

The only competitor among the field for the Selling Three-year-old Hurdle who had had public experience of hurdle racing was Harlequin. He was made a hot favourite, and proceeded to win in a canter. He came over the last hurdle with a slight lead of Double Blue, and drew away in effortless style on the flat. The winner was sold to Captain J. Powell for 360 guineas.

With only three runners in opposition for the Chertsey Selling Steeplechase and the fog obscuring nearly all the running, there was little to interest spectators. However, as it was, the favourite, Dutch Gold, who won the large majority of backers, had something about which to cheer at the end of the race.

Dutch Gold's jockey was sitting up some time before the post was reached. The Spider took second place from Sunny Peace in the last twenty yards.

SAAF BEST BET

Potboiler Given a Chance in Ormonde Plate

SAAF, one of the Aga Khan's many promising two-year-olds, is taken as the best bet on the Newbury card to-day. The gelding, who runs in the October Nursery, came in for strong support at the previous meeting held here, but met one too good for him in Lohengrin.

I understand that Saaf has progressed in the right direction since that outing, and is confidently expected to go one better and open his winning account. He is a half-brother to Theft, so should be able to combine speed with stamina.

Longriggan makes considerable appeal despite the fact that he has to give weight away all round. Captain Boyd-Rochfort's charge had no chance against the speedy Stafaralla at Doncaster, it is true, but earlier at Goodwood he had put up a capital display when beating Sub Pœna and Game Cart among others.

Erikson, on the other hand, will be receiving weight from nearly everything. He can be fancied on his second to Be Shy at Bath in August.

Stevedore, who represents the interests of Beckhampton, beat a field of thirty-six on his début on this course in April, but has failed in three subsequent races. If he reproduces his spring form he would be a danger to the best. Kentish Emblem runs for Jack Jarvis instead of four others, so any significant market movement in his favour should not be entirely ignored. The selection is

SAAF.

Although Potboiler has run in ten races—three last season and seven this—without gaining winning brackets, I advise backers to give him one more chance in the Ormonde Plate.

Lord Astor's colt showed a glimpse of what he was capable of when running a creditable third to Blue Star and Kindale at Chepstow last month. That was over six furlongs; but he can stay a mile equally well.

Renardo has to allow Potboiler nearly 2st., and, in my opinion, he will be unable to do so. He made no show whatever in the St. Leger, finishing out of the first ten. It is necessary to go back to April to find him showing his best form. Then at Newmarket he proved too good for Perifox and a useful field.

Zaimis is certain to be well backed after his prominent showing in the Cambridgeshire, in which he was beaten less than a length into fourth place. He has a good deal more to do, however, and although I expect him to give his backers a run for their money, I cannot see him beating

POTBOILER.

Tom Brown has shown such consistent form all through the season that I fail to see what is to beat P. Bell's charge in the Russley Handicap. Golden Shore is on the upgrade, while now that Poetic Licence has struck winning form, it may be as well to keep him on the right side. Still, I do not think will experience any great difficulty in winning.

CHENONCEAUX,

a French-bred three years old, may be good enough to win the Manton Handicap. He created a favourable impression when he made a bold bid to break Madeira Knight's winning sequence at Haydock Park last month. I fancy that he will score now at the main expense of Pat's Cottage.

The "sellers" I leave, respectively, to War Time and Rosegay.

THE CESAREWITCH

Probables and Form for Big Race at Newmarket

CASTANELLE, who has only one eye, and Organeau—two of the French challengers for the Cesarewitch—arrived at Folkestone yesterday from Boulogne, after an excellent crossing. They made the journey in special horse-boxes on the Channel steamer Maid of Kent. The horses were stabled at Folkestone last night, and will travel to Newmarket by road to-day. Harewood, another French contender, is expected to arrive at Folkestone to-day or to-morrow.

There was a big run on Faites Vos Jeux in England yesterday, and all "forties" available were quickly snapped up. Good business was done later down to 25 to 1. Idaho also was in strong demand at 28 to 1.

MESSRS. GOFF'S SALES

Brood Mares and Foals Auctioned at Ballsbridge

MESSRS. R. J. GOFF'S second Autumn Sale commenced at Ballsbridge yesterday, and will continue to-day and to-morrow. Yesterday's lots comprised brood-mares and foals, and the prices were up to the average, although they did not rule high, the top being 310 guineas, paid by a cross-Channel buyer, Mr. Lindsay Bayles, for Inchmahone, a seven years old mare, covered by Legatee, a winner and the sire of winners.

Mr. J. T. Clanchy, a well-known buyer at the sales, went to 300 guineas for a brown filly foal by Knight of the Garter—Markaway. The Brownstown Stud had a number of lots up, and Mr. Lindsay Bayles paid 280 guineas for Inchmahone's brown filly foal by Sir Cosmo. The next most prominent purchaser was Mr. J. H. Peard, who successfully bid 280 guineas for The Lily Maid, a nine years old bay mare, covered by Aftab, and he went to 200 guineas for The Lily Maid's chestnut filly foal by Furrokh Siyar. Towards the close of a long day Mr. McDonald secured a chestnut colt foal by Coup de Lyon, a big winner in England, for 210 guineas.

The totals for the day were: 129 lots sold for 7,961 guineas. Last year 121 lots realised 7,751 guineas. Details:—

NEWMARKET HINTS FOR TO-DAY

NEWMARKET, Thursday.

Teams on the Racecourse side to-day were restricted to cantering exercise, among them being Frank Butters' string, which included the Cesarewitch Stakes candidate, Near Relation. Coughing is prevalent in the stable, but it is mostly among the younger members. It is not an epidemic that is causing a great deal of anxiety. Near Relation, who gave entire satisfaction in his gallop yesterday, cantered six furlongs on the tan.

Major Beatty's Cesarewitch charges, Idaho and Spartan III., cantered six furlongs.

Captain Whitaker sent his Cesarewitch candidate, Tapageur, with Laureat II., one mile at a striding pace.

Other horses we have engaged are all showing a clean bill of health, but at the moment are taking matters easily.

We shall not be represented in the first two events at Newbury to-morrow. Longriggan and Saaf are well fancied for the October Nursery. Both stay very well, although I do not think that Longriggan will be capable of giving 8lb. to who is a greatly improved colt.

RENARDO (next best)

has been running over longer distances in his work lately than a mile, the distance of the Ormonde Plate. He has been going particularly well, and I am sure he will make a bold attempt to secure premier honours.

For the Russley Handicap I give a slight preference to Keelie, although I think he would be better suited by a shorter distance.

GOLF

THE PROFESSIONAL INTERNATIONALS

NARROW SCOTS' VICTORY OVER WALES

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

Scotland defeated Wales in the first of the new series of triangular professional internationals at Cawder, near Glasgow, yesterday.

The home country won the foursomes by three to two, and then took the singles five to four, with one halved for the match.

To-day Ireland plays Wales, and the event will conclude to-morrow with the Scotland-Ireland match.

There was a great struggle in the leading single in which Dai Rees, the Welsh leader, beat James Adams by two holes. The first six were halved, but Adams turned one up. Rees squared at the eleventh, went ahead at the thirteenth, and clinched the match at the eighteenth, where Adams pulled his drive.

The countries were level with five singles to play, but Scotland took three of these, and halved another for victory.

MAHON MAY NOT PLAY TO-DAY

As a result of the inclement weather, Mahon may withdraw from the Irish team to play Wales to-day. It rained heavily all yesterday, and, acting on medical advice, Mahon did not venture out to play with the other members of the team. He informed the selectors and an Irish Times reporter last night that unless the weather improves he will not play.

Mahon's withdrawal would be a very serious matter for Ireland, as he was selected No. 1.

Holley's place was kept open until last night, when it was decided to play E. Patterson (Donaghadee) against Wales, and W. Kinsella (Skerries) against Scotland. In the event of Mahon not playing, P. Stevenson (Royal Portrush) will be included.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

OBJECTION TO DUNNE

Should Not Have Played at Oslo, Says Swedish Official

PROTEST LODGED: MR. WICKHAM'S STATEMENT

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

OSLO, Thursday.

A PROTEST is being made against the playing of J. Dunne, the Irish centre-forward, in the recent match against Norway here on October 10.

Mr. Anton Johansen, ex-President of the Swedish Football Association, who was the International Football Federation's observer at the match, has made the protest.

He says that Dunne "should not have been played because he has often represented Northern Ireland, who are not members of the International Federation.

Commenting on this protest, Mr. Asbjoern Halvorsen, Secretary of the Norwegian Football Association, said that even if the International Federation approved the protest, Norway would not need to play the World Cup match again.

He added that, in any event, the return match between Norway and Ireland at Dublin on November 7 would be played as an ordinary international match. There was no reason to cancel it.

QUALIFICATION RULE

"Ridiculous," was the comment of Mr. J. Wickham, Secretary of the F.A. I.F.S., when an Irish Times reporter drew his attention to Mr. Johansen's protest.

"Dunne," added Mr. Wickham, "is perfectly eligible to play for our country, according to the Articles of the F.I.F.A., and particularly in accordance with the rules of the World's Cup competition qualification."

He quoted Article 3, which states:—"Each Association shall compose its representative team by its best players who are subjects of its country and submit to its jurisdiction, or who have received the regular permission from their Association. In case a player should be qualified for more than one national association (double nationality) he shall be obliged to choose the country for which he plays in accordance with the prescription of Article 21 of the F.I.F.A. regulations."

Mr. Wickham added that Mr. Johansen, neither before nor after the match at Oslo, made the slightest remark to any of the F.A. I.F.S. officials about the playing of Dunne. His Association would insist on the match at Dalymount Park being played as a World's Cup match and not as "an ordinary international match."

The Executive alone of the F.I.F.A. could deal with the protest, and, as the Executive were scattered all over the world, some considerable time must elapse before it could be considered.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE MATCH AT DALYMOUNT PARK

THE second match in the World's Cup competition between Ireland and Norway will be played at Dalymount Park on Sunday, November 7th, at 3 o'clock. At Oslo on October 10th the home country won by 3-2, so that should Ireland win at Dalymount Park, say, by two clear, our team would survive the round in Group II.

Norway's team will not be decided on until after next Sunday's match with Germany at Berlin. In the Olympic Games the Norwegians defeated Germany 3-1 at Berlin, and for Sunday's match the Stadium at Berlin, which accommodates 120,000, has been booked out.

The Irish XI. will probably be chosen on Monday, November 1st, and with the experience gained at Oslo our selectors will likely be able to put a stronger side in the field.

The F.A.I.F.S. has submitted the following panel of referees to the Norway F.A.:—Mr. G. Webb (Scotland), Mr. J. Gibbs (England), and M. J. Langenus (Belgium).

WORLD-WIDE GROUPING

This World's Cup competition is really of world-wide importance. Thirty-eight countries and States entered for it. They have been divided into eight groups, and the finals between sixteen teams will be played in France between June 4th and 19th.

Associations entered for the competition were:—Austria, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Costa Rica, Colombia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Dutch East Indies, Egypt, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Jugoslavia, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxemburg, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Palestine, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, El Salvador, Spain, Surinam, Sweden, Switzerland, United States of America.

According to the decision of the Executive Committee the holder of the cup, the Federazione Italiana Giuoco Calcio, as well as the association organising the competition—the Federation Francaise de Football Association—are directly qualified for the final competition. The finalists of the Central American group have to play a qualification match in France against the representatives of the North American group, and the winners will enter in the final competition.

Dalymount Park has a holding capacity of 45,000, and it is expected that the accommodation will be heavily taxed. Therefore, it is desirable that early application for tickets should be made to the Association's offices, D'Olier Chambers, D'Olier street; or to Messrs. Elvery's, Crotty's or Kapp and Peterson's.

McCALMONT CUP MATCH AT KILKENNY

Dublin's oldest teams, Bohemians and Shelbourne, will play a match next Sunday at St. James's Park, Kilkenny, under the auspices of the newly-formed Kilkenny City club.

The winners will hold for one season the Perpetual Challenge Cup, presented to the Kilkenny club by Major McCalmont, and each season the trophy will be competed for at Kilkenny by two Free State League teams. Bohemians and Shelbourne will be at full strength on Sunday.

FULL BACK FOR CORK

Cork F.C. have secured the signature of Bob Calder, a full-back, late of Glasgow Rangers and Cardiff City. Marshall, the Cork captain, is at present in England scouting for further talent.

DUNDALK'S TEAM

For their match against Limerick on Sunday Dundalk will have O'Neill and Squires again in the side. O'Neill has been injured and was unable to take part in the last three games. Squires, who was with Dundalk on a month's trial, has been signed on for the season, and will again occupy the inside-left position. The Dundalk team will be:—Tizard; O'Neill, Hoy; McAfee, Moloney, Lunn; Lee, Donnelly, Carroll, Squires and Griffith.

NEUSEL'S OFFER TO STRICKLAND

FARR WANTS £10,000 TO FIGHT HARVEY

Walter Neusel, the German heavy-weight, is prepared to give Maurice Strickland a return fight. Neusel, who, with his manager, Mr. Paul Damski, leaves for Amsterdam to-day to discuss a fight with Max Schmeling, stated yesterday that, in the event of a second bout with Strickland, it must be over fifteen rounds, and not twelve, as was the case at Wembley last Tuesday. Neusel is hoping to have a London fight before meeting Schmeling, although a suggested date for a contest between the two Germans is November 14th.

"Mr. Walter Rothenberg is the promotor for the Berlin fight," said Mr. Damski. "If we secure a London offer we might have the Schmeling fight in the second week in January."

Tommy Farr, British and Empire heavy-weight champion, wants £10,000 to fight Len Harvey, former title holder, at Wembley. Negotiations were started for the fight, but yesterday Harvey, who is Wembley matchmaker, said that the terms asked for were too high.

Harvey has been anxious to meet Farr in the ring ever since the Welshman returned from his American trip. He has made two applications to the British Boxing Board of Control for recognition as chief contender for a British title match with Farr. "Curiously enough, Farr is willing to meet any other Britisher for less than £10,000," said Harvey. "I am still persevering in my efforts to get a match with Farr, because I really believe I can beat him."

STRICKLAND ANXIOUS TO MEET FARR

Strickland is willing to meet Walter Neusel again, but he is more anxious to fight Tommy Farr, British and Empire champion. "Strickland would, of course, like a return bout with Neusel, but he wants to get Farr in the ring first," Mr. Daly, the New Zealander's manager, said last night. "I think he is entitled to the fight, for the majority of the people believe that he should have had the verdict against Neusel on Tuesday."

Asked if he had heard anything about his protest to the British Boxing Board of Control, Mr. Daly said: "I sent it yesterday, but I have not yet had a reply."

CRICKET

INDIA'S TEST TEAM CAPTAIN

YUVRAJ OF PATIALA MAY BE SELECTED

BOMBAY, Thursday.

Cricket enthusiasts in India are looking forward with tremendous keenness to the arrival of Lord Tennyson's team next week. At the moment they are discussing India's likely captain. General opinion favours the Yuvraj of Patiala, the 25-year-old son of the Maharaja of Patiala, who has done so much for the game in this country.

The Yuvraj is one of the keenest of the front-rank cricketers in India, and has decided advantages over the only two other candidates for captaincy, C. K. Nayudu and Wazir Ali. Nayudu is one of the finest cricketers India has ever produced, and Wazir Ali has been a splendid batsman, but both are now veterans of Indian cricket, and past their best.

The Yuvraj recently invited a number of prominent Indian cricketers to Chail, his father's summer seat in the Simla Hills, where several matches were played. He himself scored several centuries, including a not-out double century. The Yuvraj combines sound defence with powerful hitting. He has already played in Test cricket against England, taking part in the third Test at Madras against D. R. Jardine's team in 1934, and was top scorer for India in that match.

Twenty-five matches are to be played during the tour, including four four-day games against an India XI.

ATHLETICS

INDIANAPOLIS, Thursday.

After a year's investigation the American Amateur Athletic authorities have decided to recommend that the negro sprinter, Jesse Owens, be credited with a world record for his time of 10.2 secs. for 100 mètres, established in Chicago on June 20th, 1936. Measurement immediately after the race showed the track to be 1½ centimètres short of the required distance, and on this basis the A.A.U. decided that the record could not be allowed.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, RATHMINES

SPEECHES AT THE UNION DINNER

The annual dinner of St. Mary's College (C.S.Sp.) Union, Rathmines, was held in the Dolphin Hotel, Dublin, last night, and was attended by large numbers of members, clergy, as well as representatives of other Catholic College Unions.

Mr. Frank A. Purcell, President of the Union, proposing the toast of the College, said that no school had more loyal or devoted past pupils than St. Mary's. Their love for her was not based solely on her success as an educational institution or her triumphs in the field of sport; their love was based on something more fundamental. They loved her as a kind, good, and loving mother. In this age of cynicism, when the noblest sentiments were made the subject of ridicule, and even religion itself was treated with derision, it was well that they should hold on to their loyalties, and, if he might say so at the risk of appearing to be facetious, "stick to your old school tie"—it might yet be the symbol by which many of the evils threatening the world might be averted.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Replying to the toast, the Very Rev. Peter J Walsh, C.S.Sp., President of St. Mary's College, said there seemed to be no weakening of the ties that bound them to their school—advancing years seemed to unite them more closely. He congratulated the Union on a most successful year's activities—the finest in their history. The various affiliated clubs were all worthy of special reference.

The recent examination results, he said, showed that serious work and solid progress were not incompatible with the social life the students enjoyed. In education no system seemed too fantastic to be advocated. The general tendency was towards lack of discipline, and the diminution almost to vanishing point of all serious efforts on the part of boys to leave the masters to do the work and the boys to rest. Happily, in this country, they were new fashions that did not receive much sympathy. They were prone to examine the credentials of the theorist rather than be carried away by his theories. In their Catholic schools they had not lost their respect for the dignity of labour. Whilst leaving nothing undone to prepare pupils to take their place in this life, they never lost sight of the fact that there was another life, the preparation for which was of vastly greater importance. They must prepare their pupils to be Catholic men—any education that left aside the supernatural was a mockery and sham.

The toast of "Our Guests" was proposed by Mr. P. J. Nugent.

Responding, Mr. Martin C. Maguire, K.C., President of Blackrock College Union, said that he regretted that the efforts made some years ago to consolidate the College Unions into a strong whole had failed. It might be worth while now that Catholic Action had come to be defined to proceed on well-organised lines and to make another attempt.

Mr. T. Forbes, barrister-at-law, said that it was his first visit as a guest to St. Mary's Union, but not once since the speeches had begun that night had he heard a word of Irish spoken, or a reference to the fact that St. Mary's, as well as having to propagate the Faith and look after their boys, had also a duty to Ireland. When any unit in the nation forgot its primary duty—that in Ireland Fatherland had always been coupled with Faith—then it was not living up to the standard of the "blue and white."

Mr. T. Forbes then proceeded to sing "We Won't Go Home Till Morning," and "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No More" in Irish, in which some of the past pupils joined in chorus.

The Chairman said that they did not altogether resent the criticism of Mr. Forbes, but they did not expect it on such an occasion.

LORD MAYOR'S REPLY

The Lord Mayor of Dublin (Alderman A. Byrne, T.D.) said that when he first went into the Dublin Corporation in 1910 he was approached by a delicate-looking young man, who wished to secure a post as an engineer in the Improvements' Committee of the Corporation. Amongst his testimonials was one, that he had received a first-class education in St. Mary's College and had qualified in Irish. That young man got the appointment: he was Rory O'Connor. A short time ago he (the Lord Mayor) was present at the unveiling of a window which had been erected in the National University in honour of a young hero. When he asked where that boy was educated he was told St. Mary's College. That boy was Kevin Barry. A couple of years ago there died another young man who had done much for the language of his country and risked his life also for the national cause. He had also done much to popularise Irish folk songs in America and elsewhere. That man was the late Gerald Crofts, who was a St. Mary's boy.

The Lord Mayor said that he had seen the examination results this year, and St. Mary's College had done as well in Irish as any other school or College.

MINISTER OPPOSES LEASE TERMS

GALWAY'S FACTORY SURPRISE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Thursday.

Galway Urban Council have received a letter from the Minister for Local Government stating that, in view of a report furnished by the County Medical Officer of Health and the nature of the terms proposed for the leasing of a site at Wood quay, Galway, to Les Modes Modernes, Ltd., hat manufacturers, the Minister was not prepared to sanction the proposed terms of the letting.

Mr. McDonagh said that the reason the Council had agreed to reduce the site rent from £50 a year to a shilling a year was in order to put nothing in the way of the enterprise.

The Chairman said that the factory would employ four or five hundred people, and it would be serious for Galway if it were held up.

The Council agreed to ask the Minister to receive a deputation on the matter.

Wires Broken.—Telephonic communication between Enniscorthy and Newtownbarry, Co. Wexford, was interrupted for some hours yesterday when a crane became entangled in the wires. After examining the line for seven miles from Enniscorthy, a lineman found the tall, long-necked bird between two telephone wires—dead. In trying to extricate itself the crane had apparently become exhausted flapping its wings.

LONDON STRONG

BUYING RESUMED ON ACTIVE SCALE

Following upon the marked improvement in the international political outlook the London Stock Markets yesterday presented their brightest session for some months, despite the fact that dealers were occupied with the settlement. Business was resumed earlier than usual, and during the morning quotations in all departments were advanced sharply amid scenes of intense activity. The recovery was accelerated by the rise in commodity values and the more encouraging Wall street advices, and at the close substantial gains were common notwithstanding late profit-taking. Industrials made an especially good showing, while numerous strong features developed in the Kaffir and other speculative groups. Investment sections displayed all-round buoyancy with British Rails and Foreign Bonds notably firmer.

BRITISH FUNDS.

Support for gilt-edged stocks was on brisk and well-distributed lines, and the market responded well under the lead of Old Consols. The best levels were not fully held, but even so the leading British Government issues established appreciable rises on balance.

FOREIGN BONDS.

In the Foreign Bond section Europeans reflected the better feeling regarding international affairs and Brazilians staged a general recovery. Among the latter, the 5 per cent. of 1914 showed to particular advantage. Buying of Far Easterns was also witnessed, and the principal Japanese Loans moved up rapidly to close strong.

RAILS.

British Rails, which derived benefit from the good traffic receipts for last week, participated in the general advance to a considerable extent. Sustained demand lifted Great Western Ord. from 62¼ to 64½ and L.M.S. Ord. from 30⅜ to 31⅞. Southern Deferred provided another bright spot. Improved rates were reached also by several Argentines, while American Rails registered gains ranging up to 9, by which amount Union Pacific rose to 99½. Colonials were notable for fresh activity in Canadas and the stock recovered further to 8½.

INDUSTRIALS.

Demand for Industrials embraced a wide range of shares, and every group furnished bright features. Gains in the Tobacco, Motor, and Brewery groups assumed some magnitude, while substantially higher levels ruled for Iron and Steel, Shipping and Electrical Equipment issues. Cement shares staged a further sharp recovery, and Transatlantics rose well above the equivalent of Wednesday's closing levels on Wall street. Cable stocks formed another firm section, and other significant movements included rises in British Oxygen, the two Unilevers and Hudson's Bays.

Mines were one of the most active sections of the House, and Kaffirs, which were bought on Cape, local and Continental account, spurted throughout the list. Speculative profit-taking caused some reaction towards the end, but even so, West Wits, Goldfields and many others kept well up to the close. West Africans moved in line with their neighbours, and Rhodesian Coppers recorded heavy rises. Roan Antelopes were quoted in their new form of 5s. Stock Units. Other base metal shares were stimulated by the rise in metal prices, and Mawchi and Trepca finished strong. Oil shares enjoyed a lively session, with Royal Dutch and other leaders attracting most attention.

THE MONEY MARKET

FURTHER RISE IN GOLD

A further increase by ½d. in the price of gold to 140s. 7d. was seen yesterday. Included in the price was a premium over the dollar parity of 2½d. The dollar rate at the fixing was 4.95.40. The amount of metal changing hands was slightly lower at £315,000.

A little Eastern selling was responsible for declines of 1/16d. to 19 11/16d. and 19⅞d., respectively, for spot and forward silver yesterday.

Money was in quiet demand in Lombard street at ½ per cent. Bill rates were called 17/32-9/16 per cent.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

The foreign exchange market became rather quieter yesterday. The capital movement away from Europe, which had previously resulted from the prevailing anxiety for the Mediterranean situation, was checked by the more favourable turn of events at Wednesday's session of the Spanish Non-Intervention Committee, although it was to some extent replaced by a slight flow of investment capital to Wall street, attracted by the general improvement in market conditions on Wednesday evening. The franc continued to make headway against sterling, though at a rather slower pace than earlier in the week.

The French authorities were able to sell moderate lines of francs to meet the demand, and, even then, leave the spot franc with a fairly substantial appreciation on the day. Still more impressive was the continued recovery in the forward francs, discounts for all periods being reduced to the lowest points for some time. Other European currencies were inclined to follow the lead of the dollar, and, accordingly, closed rather firmer in relation to sterling.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

FURTHER GENERAL ADVANCE

An improvement in the international situation brought about further buying in the Industrial market yesterday. Most of the business was on behalf of professional operators, and, although the best prices were not generally maintained, several substantial gains were recorded among the leading home equities.

Trans-Atlantics went ahead at first, but during the afternoon the tendency became irregular, and they finished with a rather uncertain appearance in the late dealings. U.S. Steels touched 64½ at one time, but eventually closed 1 down on the day at 60. "Emmies" further improved 1s. to 18s. 6d.

B.S.A. AGAIN HIGHER.

Cable and Wireless stocks made a better showing, the Ordinary advancing 2 to 68, and the Preference 1 to 101½.

Although final prices for Iron and Steel shares were not in all cases the best of the day, an active business resulted in an almost general advance, the gains in some instances being of substantial amount.

Further appreciation of the good results for the past year made for further strong buying of B.S.A., the price of which rose another 1s. 9d. to 22s. 9d. Tube investments were again a good market and 1s. up at 89s. 3d.

Apart from Enfield Cables, which fell 1/16, and Electric Construction, which receded 6d. to 36s. 9d., Electrical Equipments made a good showing. A strong feature was provided by Generals, a keen demand for which raised the price 3s. 1½d. to 80s. 10½d.

BREWERIES IN DEMAND.

Motors had a cheerful appearance, with most of the leaders in good demand. Standards gained ⅜ further to 5 5/16, Morris recovered 1s. to 37s., and Austins were fractionally higher at 1 11/16.

Although a firm tone again ruled in the Aircraft section, dealings on the whole remained small. Rolls Royce put on 3/16 to 5, Handley Page rose 1s 3d. to 46s. 3d., and Hawker Siddeleys went ahead to 27s. 10½d.

Breweries were in demand from the provinces, under the lead of Ind Coope, which finished 3s. 6d to the good, Distillers rose 3s., S.A. Wines 2s. 6d., and Ansells 2s., while gains of 1s. to 1s. 6d. were recorded by Guinness, Meuxs, Mitchell and Butlers, Watney Deferred, Bristol Georges, and Tadcaster Tower.

Good support was again forthcoming for the leading Tobacco shares, though final prices were in some cases slightly under the best. However "Imps" closed 5/16 higher, and "Bats" gained another 1/16, while Carreras "A" were ⅛ up. Gallahers rose 1/16 to 5⅞, and the Ord. and Defd. were also favoured.

TEXTILES BRIGHTER.

The Stores group came in for renewed attention. Marks and Spencer further advanced ⅛ to 3 1/16, and Woolworths rose 2s. 3d to 66s. 6d

Provision and Catering issues also found fresh supporters. Unilever Ord. gained 1s 9d. at 37s. 3d., and the N.V. 2s. at 38s. 6d.

There was rather more doing in Textiles, and prices hardened in several instances. J. and P. Coats strengthened to 44s. 1½d.

Among Rayons, American Celanese went ahead to 4⅜, and the Canadian issue improved to 3⅜. Courtaulds advanced to 50s at first, but eased later to 49s. 9d. Snia Viscosa were a nominal market around 3 on Italy's capital levy plan.

BRITISH OXYGENS FAVOURED.

Shipping shares made a better showing. Clan Line recovered ⅜ to 8⅛ and Court Line rose to 24s. 6d.

The Miscellaneous section presented a bright appearance, with most of the leading issues recording substantial gains. British Oxygens continued in good demand, and finished ¼ higher at 4 11/16, but Turner and Newalls reacted to 4⅜. British Aluminium rose 1s. 6d. to 46s. 9d. British Plaster Boards were supported up to 31s. 6d.

Boots Drug recovered 9d. to 49s. 9d., and the Beechams issues were also seen to advantage.

London Bricks rose 1s. 9d. to 56s. 9d., and Wall Paper Defd and Crittalls registered satisfactory gains.

ACTIVE DEALINGS IN OILS

Following the activity and strength which developed in the late "street" dealings on Wednesday and the receipt of more encouraging advices overnight from New York, the Oil Share market opened at an early hour yesterday in very strong fashion. Active bidding was heard for most of the leading counters, the prices of which continued their upward course, the advance being assisted by repurchases by bears. Business generally was on a larger scale than for several days, and, although at first it was mainly in the recognised leaders' interest, spread later to several of the more speculative favourites, prices of which were not slow to respond. Operators in Amsterdam, who recently have been heavy sellers of Royal Dutch, came in buyers of the shares, but the improvement in them was checked by selling on Paris account, and, in fact, they finished well below the best of the day. Shells similarly receded when French operators sent selling orders. In the Trinidad group business was on a larger scale than recently. Leaseholds were in keen demand, buying being attributed to favourable dividend anticipations.

RUBBERS LIVELY

Dealers in Rubber Shares yesterday encountered a considerable volume of buying orders, and, to the accompaniment of encouraging commodity advices, the market followed the example of surrounding groups. Quotations displayed a buoyant tendency from the outset, and, as few shares came on offer, demand quickly brought about some sharp advances. Profit-taking in the closing stages was easily absorbed and the leading counters wound up with good improvements. Anglo-Dutch, United Sua Betong and Rubber Trust were an especially firm trio, while Highlands, Golden Hope and Kuala Lumpur were other bright spots. Trading in a firmer commodity section was fairly brisk, and spot rubber sold up to 7 11/16d. per lb.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIRS IN BETTER DEMAND

The overnight development in the political situation, and which was reflected in the late "Street" dealings on Wednesday, exercised a greater influence on markets yesterday. A feeling of optimism generally prevailed, and, although the final adjustment of the account was in progress, Mining shares at any rate gave quite a good account of themselves.

In the Kaffir section there were evidences of a growing demand, however, after the first hour or so trading fell off, and as neither Paris nor the Cape seemed inclined to take a hand, the market as a whole became quiet. Nevertheless, many counters showed improvements on balance, and in certain cases the gains were of fairly substantial proportions. With the price of the metal on the upgrade and the publication of Mr. Chester Beatty's remarks at the Roan Antelope meeting, Rhodesian Copper descriptions exhibited a hardening tendency.

In the early hours Diamonds were exceptionally strong and big gains were scored by several of the leading counters. Later professional profit taking was in progress and the early gains were materially reduced. West Africans benefited from the better feeling generally prevailing and business was entered into with greater freedom than for some time previously. The base metal descriptions were better with the rise in lead and zinc prices, Broken Hill South being well to the fore. With the recovery in the price of tin the Eastern issues became strong and it needed but a modest demand to put prices better. Closing prices:—

Cordoba Central Railway Dispute

With a view to ending the strike situation on the British-owned Central Cordoba Railway, the Argentine Minister of Public Works, Dr. Alvarado, has ordered the management to restore the services within forty-eight hours, on pain of penalty, and instruct their staff accordingly. Orders have also been issued to the Entre Rios and Argentine North-Eastern Railways similarly to advise their staffs, in view of reports that they intend to engage in similar strikes.

Bank of England Return

A further very striking contraction in the active note issue is the feature of the Bank of England return, resulting in a further substantial gain in the reserve. The Government position is again substantially better, public deposits being £3,714,753 higher at £29,774,453, and Government securities £5,485,000 lower at £99,603,165. Market resources have in consequence shrunk further, other deposits showing a decrease of £3,753,329 at £125,581,130, and other securities an increase of £32,843 at £29,717,845. The total gold stock has lost £84,343 at £323,060,560, but as the reduction in the active note circulation amounts to £5,512,477 at £484,346,172, there is a further increase in the reserve as compared with a week ago of £5,428,134 at £45,714,388, and the proportion of reserve is 3.50 per cent. higher at 28.13 per cent.

Bankers' Clearing

The Bankers' Clearing House return for the week ended the 20th inst. amounted to £781,444,000, as compared with £875,426,000 in the corresponding week of last year, a decrease of £93,982,000.

Rubber Quota

It is learned on reliable authority that the Singapore Rubber Association is considering urging the most prompt and strong action by the International Rubber Regulation Committee regarding a cut in the quota. It is understood that such an action will be taken in the near future. Stress is laid on the fact that native-produced rubber, which has been financed by Singapore houses, is being thrown on the market to the detriment of the native holders and jeopardising Malaya's general dependence on the prosperity of the rubber industry. The next meeting of the I.R.R.C. is provisionally fixed for November 15, but it is always open to the Committee to call an earlier meeting should it so desire. No step in this direction has yet been taken.

AMERICAN FINANCIAL NOTES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MAIZE LOAN TO BE DISCUSSED.

It is understood that President Roosevelt, Mr. H. A. Wallace (Secretary of Agriculture) and Mr. Morgenthau (Secretary of the Treasury) are prepared to proceed with the Maize Loan before the special session of Congress convenes. A loan of 46 cents urged by Mr. Wallace will probably be approved. In reply to a query as to how funds could be raised, Mr. Wallace expressed his opinion that the money, undoubtedly, could be found somewhere.

At a conference with President Roosevelt in Washington on Wednesday the leaders of the American Farm Bureau Federation stated that there was immediate necessity for a Maize Loan, and suggested a loan of 50 cents. At the same time the question of a loan was regarded as being imperilled by the President's decision to halt further commitments by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as the Commodity Credit Corporation had stated that it would be impossible to handle a Maize Loan without assistance from the R.F.C.

UNION CARBIDE AND CARBONS' PROFITS.

The Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation reports for the third quarter a net profit of 10,013,000 dollars—equal to 1.11 dollar per share—compared with 8,112,000 dollars (90 cents) for the third quarter of 1936.

FIRESTONE SHUTS DOWN FOR INVENTORY.

It is reported from Akron that the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company has closed down for a fortnight for inventory purposes. Pressure against rubber futures at the close of the market yesterday coincided with rumours, which could not be confirmed, that the Firestone Company, and also the Fisk Rubber Company, were shutting down for a fortnight.

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES IMPROVE.

Department store sales in the New York metropolitan area during the first half of October were 3 per cent. over the figure for the corresponding period of last year, according to the New York Federal Reserve Bank which, though less than seasonal, is regarded as encouraging because last year's sales were extremely high.

RISE IN PRICE OF COPPER SCRAP.

Following the strength of export copper, the price of copper scrap has been advanced to 9½ cents, which is the refined equivalent of 10½ cents per lb.

U.S. REFINED LEAD FIGURES.

Figures issued by the American Bureau of Metal Statistics show that stocks of refined lead at the end of September totalled 90,700 tons, compared with 103,500 tons at the end of August. Production during the month totalled 41,000 tons, against 47,000 tons; while despatches amounted to 53,900 tons, compared with 54,600 tons in August.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN

	Numbers on sale this week as compared with last.	Corresponding weeks of 1935.	1936.
Beasts	......3,169—decrease 93	4,172	2,942
Sheep and lambs...	6,238—increase 796	6,719	6,188
Veal calves	14—increase 8	23	18

In the general trading position of cattle market this week, and the give and take of things, little real change can be recorded. Supplies of cattle were smaller, but the gathering was chiefly roughish and half or three quarters meated descriptions, which tended to make their realisation a tougher task. Yet anything with pretensions to usefulness could scarcely be purchased at quotably less money in relation to weight than before. On the other hand, the moderate proportion available of good to well finished or quality beasts made a tighter fit of the value position. Home trade and export buyers were in full attendance, and offtake of cattle for shipment fully up to last day, but prices on the whole were inclined in buyers' favour. The gathering of cattle, although smaller, appeared to be sufficient to satisfy all home and export buying interests. At all events, there was no apparent rush for anything. Neither was the money position seriously challenged for the pick of things, but heavy heifers and secondary bullocks were more cautiously bid for, and did not look like clearing at a late hour, when values were:—Best bullocks 28s. to 29s., extra 30s. to 31s. 6d., per cwt.; heifers 27s. to 28s., extra 29s. and 30s., secondary sorts around 25s. 6d. to 26s. 6d., rougher 24s. to 25s. Beef cows experienced a slow and dragging sale throughout. In fact, after the disposal of the nice young beasts at previous values, there appeared to be small want, except at prices which were not acceptable to owners, and market failed to clear. Bulls of suitable class readily placed; others neglected. Best young cows 16s. to 18s., extra 19s. to 20s. per cwt., useful sorts 12s. to 14s., others to best advantage.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The ovine branch of market was dominated by a more distinctly depressed disposition. There was a veritable dry up in the export inquiry for lambs, which are said to be too dear for markets yonder. In the circumstances, prices showed a weaker trend for the pick of things, but poor or half-meated pens were in most cases passed by without a bid. Sheep generally proved more difficult to place, and with a substantial increase in supplies, market closed with large numbers turned out unsold. Prime mutton 7½d. to 8½d. per lb., useful quality 6½d. to 7d., rougher 4½d. to 6d., and lambs 23s. to 48s. per head, according to class.

DAIRY CATLE.

Over 300 head of milch cattle were put forward for sale on this market, most of which were of secondary or poor class. Plenty of English, Scotch and home buyers were about, but somehow, few showed much eagerness in general selection after they secured requisite number of cows and heifers to cover their requirements, and, altogether, markets impressed one as weaker in the main. Still, the right outstanding class of fresh stockers fully maintained previous money value. Best cows and heifers £15 to £17, extra £18 to £19 per head, secondary sorts £12 to £14, small and inferior £8 to £11.

PIGS.

Market gave 1,113 head of swine, most of which showed useful quality. Buyers in good attendance, and trade of healthier competitive nature at generally firmer rates. The shipping demand was more active, and with local buyers in want, sellers found no difficulty in placing all suitable bacon and pork pigs to better advantage. Sows continue scarce, with the right type in demand. Slips and bonhams also satisfactorily placed in sellers' favour. Prime light-weight porkers 60s. to 62s. per cwt., medium bacon 70s. to 72s., heavier 60s. to 64s., sows 50s. to 54s., slips and bonhams 23s. to 30s., extra 35s. to 40s. per head.

BRISTOL.—About 600 fresh Irish cattle and 100 English were on offer. Best beef in short supply; prices no better the best making 7½d. per lb. dead-weight. A little more inquiry for the large market of very choice store cattle, and most lots got cleared. Best three-year-olds fetched £16 to £17 each, two-year-olds £15 to £16, yearlings £11 to £14. Short supply of milch cattle; trade a turn better. Best lots made £19 to £22 apiece, secondary sorts £17 to £18.

YORK.—Very large show of Irish beasts of higher average quality than of recent weeks, and best made up to £19 10/-. Light offer of calving and milch cows, for which prices declined £1 per head, best cows making to £27. Medium trade for fair show of sheep down-crossed ewes making to 63/- apiece.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—With steady demand and supplies still on short side, values are firmer. Sizeable bacons 14/-, cutters 14/- to 14/6, sows 10/9 to 11/- per score dead-weight.

GRAIN.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—WHEAT—A very firm tone pervaded the cargo section, and prices were advanced by 6d. to 1/- per quarter, with Canadian 2/- p[illegible] following the sharp improvement in overseas cables. Liberal export sales were reported in American grades to Europe, while the recovery of Stock Markets imparted confidence. Buyers, however, were reluctant to follow the upward movement, and trading was slow to develop. No. 1 Northern Manitoba (Atlantic) October-November sellers 57/6, white Pacific November 41/-, Australian afloat also shipping-shipped 45/-, November 43/9, new December 43/6, January-February 42/-; Rosafe (63½lb.) January-February 42/-. Parcels firmer, but buyers pausing. No. 1 Northern Manitoba (Atlantic) November sellers 57/3, No. 2 do. 54/3, No. 3 do. 47/, No. 4 do. 45/4½; No. 2 hard winter all ports October-November 41/7½; South Australian October-November 44/9, West Australian November 45/-, Victorian October 44/9, choice white Karachi October-November 44/3, Rosafe (63lb.) January-February 40/9, Russian sample October-November 42/9 to 45/3, Danubian sample October 37/6 to 40/- per quarter of 480lb. c.i.f. terms. MAIZE cargoes firmer following a better demand, firmness of wheat, and higher Argentine cables. Plate afloat sellers 28/3, October 28/6, November 28/4½, December 28/3. Parcels firmer. Plate October sellers 27/10½, November 27/9 per quarter of 480lb. c.i.f. Cargo, per Eirini Kyrlakides, 5,900 tons of Plate October 20th loading, sold late Wednesday at 28/1½. BARLEY steadily held. Parcels of No. 3 Canadian Western (Atlantic) October-November sellers 28/6, Iraqian November-December 26/-. Plate January-February 26/- per quarter of 400lb. c.i.f. OATS maintained. Parcels of Plate f.a.q. January-February sellers 16/9, No. 2 Canadian Western (Atlantic) October-November 29/-, No. 1 Canadian feed do. 26/10½ per quarter of 320lb. c.i.f.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—The heavy advance in America was partly counteracted by good weather in Australia and the Argentine, and better political situation, but forward deliveries of wheat here showed a considerable improvement at the commencement of operations. Prices afterwards fluctuated moderately according to the offerings, but late afternoon cables, especially from the Argentine, were disappointing, and had an adverse effect, the market finishing unchanged from previous night for October, though other months a liberal advance, but under best point. C.i.f. parcels unchanged to 1/6 dearer. Choice white Karachi November sold at 42/9 to Manchester, Danubian afloat to Liverpool at 47/9, and No. 1 Manitoba November quoted 56/- per quarter. C.i.f. parcels River Plate maize steadier. Afloat and January sold at 27/9 per quarter. WHEAT on the spot steadily held. MAIZE—Spot parcels firmer at 6/2 to 6/2½ per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet at late rates. Graded wheat futures opened 1d. to 1¼d. per cental dearer, then varied as buyers or sellers preponderated, but receded during late afternoon, the market closing quiet, October unchanged, and other months ⅝d. to ¾d. over previous night. Values—October 8/8⅜, December 8/6⅛, March 8/3, May 5/2⅜ per cental.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

UPWARD MOVEMENT CONTINUES

FINAL GAINS TOUCH THREE DOLLARS

From Reuter's Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

Widespread profit-taking checked a high-spirited advance on Wall street to-day. The pace of the recent upward surge created a tendency to caution, which was, perhaps, the chief reason for the realising, but, nevertheless, the market, largely owing to late strength in the Railway division, ended very firm. Final gains extending to $3 predominated in a turnover of 3,640,000 shares. On the other hand, sentiment is mixed, and, while the market has been forced to absorb a considerable volume of selling, Wall street does not believe that the so-called "secondary reaction" has yet been completed.

The opening was firm, and the advance quickly broadened out in very brisk trading, with blocks of 1,000 to 7,000 shares changing hands during the morning, and the "ticker" falling slightly behind. The Steels and Utilities were most prominent in the rise, but all groups participated. After advancing fractions to 3 or more a barrage of realising notably apparent in U.S. Steel—caused some irregularity towards midday.

The Steels were chilled by the closing down of a number of blast furnaces in Pittsburg. Rails were undecided, with some buying in this section being based on expectations that the Inter-State Commerce Commission's decision on the question of higher freight rates must now be handed down very soon. Quotations hardened in the later dealings, with operations becoming more active, and the close was very firm.

Sterling exchange opened 1/16 down at 4.95⅜, and declined to 4.95 1/16 during the morning. The rate improved to 4.95 1/16 in the afternoon, but finally eased, and closed ⅛ lower, compared with the previous close, at 4.95 1/16.

Silver was unchanged at 44⅛.

SHOW.

Oct. 27—Munster Agricultural Society's Autumn Show and Sale of Cattle and Farm Produce, Cork.

STORE CATTLE SALES

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Consignments forward for yesterday's sale very large and comprised a grand selection of bullocks and heifers. There was a particularly good show of forward conditioned two and three-year-old bullocks. Trade ruled good, with good quality bullocks attracting steady attention from home and cross-Channel buyers at prices fully up to last week's quotations. The following are some of the principal transactions:—Two pens of very choice A.A.X. heifers with two teeth, the property of the Right Hon. Lord HolmPatrick, sold at £12 2/6 and £11; James Nolan's A.A.X. and polly bullocks, £14 10/- to £13 10/-; H. J. Rooney's Hereford cross bullocks, £13 15/-, £13 7/6 and £11 5/-; N. Galway Greer's A.A.X. bullocks, £12 2/6 and £10 12/6; Mrs. Madden's Hereford cross bullocks, £14 10/-, £14 2/6 and £13 2/6; W. J. Bond's Hereford cross heifers £12 10/-.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW.

Store cattle were shown in smaller numbers at this week's sale at 50 Prussia street, Dublin, good aged cattle, particularly, being scarce. Trade was firm for all best quality lots, and these changed hands at satisfactory prices. Thin and secondary sorts although meeting a quiet enquiry under the "hammer," were subsequently sold to advantage. Best A.A. and Herefords made up to 31/- per cwt. with others back to 27/-; shorthorn bullocks and heifers made from 24/- to 29/-.

MESSRS. CRAIGIE BROTHERS.

At Craigie Brothers' store cattle auction yesterday numbers were larger than at previous sale. There was a better attendance of both home and cross-Channel buyers, and, although last week's quotations were not improved on, the bulk of the cattle on offer changed hands. The principal sellers were:—T. Henry Carter, horned bullocks (16), £12 15/-; J. E. Kearney, A.A. cross bullocks, £10 12/6; James Brindley, bullock calves, £10; Robert Lambert, horned bullocks, £12; P. J. Fair, A.A. cross heifers, £9; Mrs. R. P. Fagan, Hereford cross bullocks, £10 15/-; Claud J. Bourchier, A.A. cross bullocks, £7 17/6, and heifer calves, £7 12/6; M. Pierce, shorthorn bullock calves, £8 10/-; Patrick White, A.A. cross and Hereford cross calves, £9 10/- to £10 10/-.

At the fortnightly meeting of the Belfast Corporation's Police Committee, held in the City Hall yesterday, under the presidency of Councillor Lieutenant-Commander Harcourt, the report of the chief officer of the Fire Brigade showed that during the past fortnight the brigade had responded to nine calls of fire and the ambulance to 135 calls.

A fire broke out in a kitchen house at Premier Drive, which is in the Belfast Corporation Seaview housing estate, yesterday morning, and two machines, one from Whitla street and one from headquarters, answered the call. The firemen found the contents of the kitchen well alight, but succeeded in extinguishing the outbreak before other rooms became involved.

BELFAST I.R.A. MAN SENTENCED

POLICE RAID ON HALL

INCRIMINATING LETTER FOUND

A POLICE raid on a meeting-place of the Irish Republican Army in Belfast was described at the Belfast Custody Court yesterday, when John McArdle, of 31 Beechmount street, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour on a charge of being in possession of a document relating to the Irish Republican Army.

The prisoner asked no questions and made no statement, and Mr. Campbell, in passing sentence, said that the magistrates were satisfied that the case was proved, and that McArdle was mute of his own volition.

Constable Thomas Davis stated that there were 14 men and two women present, including the defendant, in a house in King street. Witness searched the prisoner and found on him a letter in which the writer made application for "transfer from 'B' Company of the volunteers."

"I find it hard," stated the document, "to take any interest in the ordinary routine duties of the volunteers, as I am interested in other Republican activities, unit organisation, etc., and I find sometimes these clash with my activities as a volunteer."

Constable Davis said that he asked the defendant what the document meant and for whom it was intended, and McArdle said that he did not know, as it was handed to him that night.

Mr. McCoy—What is this hall used for?

Witness—I understand that it is a meeting place for the I.R.A.

Does it go under the name of any club?—It is known to the police as the Pearse Club.

"TRICKERY AND FRAUD"

FALSE DEATH CERTIFICATES

CONDEMNATION BY JUSTICE

From Our Correspondent.

ENNIS, Thursday.

"I DO not think this type of trickery, humbug and fraud is going to be put down by soft talk or fines. It can only be put down by putting the tricksters into jail and keeping them there," said District Justice Gleeson at Ennistymon District Court yesterday when dealing with charges involving the issuing of false death certificates which were used for the purpose of obtaining money under insurance policies issued by the Prudential Assurance Co.

The defendants were Denis O'Dwyer, of Calluragh, Lahinch, and Thomas Burns, Ennistymon. Both are elderly men, and at the date of commission of the offences were Assistant Registrars of Births, Deaths and Marriages in their respective districts. They pleaded guilty. O'Dwyer, who was charged with issuing two false certificates, was fined £4 with £5 19s. 10d. expenses, and allowed two months to pay. Burns was fined £9 in respect of four charges, ordered to pay £8 16s. expenses, and allowed three months in which to pay.

Mr. M. J. Walshe, State Solicitor, who prosecuted, said that O'Dwyer had issued a certificate for the late Mary O'Brien, of Breaffa, stating she had been only 75 years of age at the time of her death. The Register of Deaths showed her real age to be 90. Similarly in the case of Daniel Griffin, of Dough, who died aged 53 years, a false certificate issued by the defendant stated he was only 50 years. The cause of death was also wrong.

Mr. F. F. Cullinan, for the defendant, said the certificates were issued carelessly and without making proper inquiries. Very often he got a person to read out the entries in the register while he wrote them on the certificate, and mistakes occurred in that way.

MONEY PAID

Mr. Walsh said that the certificates had been subsequently handed to the local agent of the Prudential Company, and the latter paid out sums of money to certain persons who had the lives of the deceased persons insured with the company.

The Justice asked were not the persons who got the certificates equally, if not more, guilty than the present defendants, and Mr. Walshe replied that it was difficult to get evidence to bring it home to everybody concerned. He quoted two statements made by persons who had applied for and obtained certificates.

Justice—According to the statements they know nothing, and anything they do know they have forgotten.

The Justice said that the Act under which the prosecution was brought prescribed a maximum penalty of £10, and there was no power to imprison. It was a matter of common knowledge, and they had had experience of it before that the issuing of false death certificates was only a small part of a very wide type of fraud. To his mind it was a very serious offence, and there ought to be power of imprisonment, because he did not see any other way of stopping such frauds.

"It is gross, widespread fraud," declared the Justice, "which cuts to the root of all public business, and in dealing with these men I must consider the public. It is quite obvious that other parties are mixed up in this business, but it is a melancholy thing to see these two men, over 70 years of age, involved in a case of this kind, which suggests that there is an elaborate fraudulent system behind it. It shows there is something rotten running through the whole community when this sort of thing goes on. There seems to be no sense of propriety or morality, and that any kind of trickery can be done to serve a purpose. There used to be decent people in the country, but they seem to be dying out."

OBITUARY.

MR. W. J. LUNDY

Mr. William J. Lundy, solicitor, of "Mayfield," Zion road, Rathgar, Dublin, died yesterday at his home, at the age of 63. He is survived by his widow.

MR. TERENCE RUDDY

The death of Mr. Terence Ruddy took place yesterday at his residence, 6 Kilmorey street, Newry. He was the conductor of the famous St. Joseph's Brass and Reed Band and a leading figure in the municipal life of the town. All his life he had been identified with the Home Rule movement, and was elected as a Nationalist for the South Ward to the Newry Urban Council in 1908, and ever since retained his seat on that body. He was also a member of the Newry Port and Harbour Trust, Chairman of the Urban Council's Gas Committee till his resignation through failing health, and a member of the Municipal Technical School Committee. Under his conductorship St. Joseph's Band won the championship of Great Britain and Ireland at Belle Vue, Manchester, in 1923. Previously it had won the championship of Ireland in 1912 and again in 1924 and 1928.

Steve Donoghue, who is to take up training next year, was entertained by fellow-jockeys in London on Wednesday night. Gordon Richards, the champion jockey, handed to him a silver trophy engraved with the signatures of the other jockeys. It bore the words: "To our friend, Steve, as a token of respect and admiration."

SHIPBUILDING DEADLOCK

FEWER BRITISH VESSELS ORDERED

LAUNCHING CEREMONY AT BELFAST

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Thursday.

THE motor vessel, Delane, the second of the group of three motor driven cargo liners, which Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd., have had under construction for the Lamport and Holt Line, Ltd., was successfully launched to-day from the Queen's Island, Belfast.

The naming ceremony was gracefully performed by Mrs. Maughan, wife of Mr. Cuthbert Maughan, The Times Shipping Correspondent. In selecting Delane as the name of their vessel, Messrs. Lamport and Holt have commemorated the memory of John T. Delane, Editor of The Times from 1841 to 1877.

The vessel has the following principal dimensions:—Length overall, about 456ft.; breadth moulded, 62ft.; depth moulded (to shelter deck), 37ft. 9ins.; gross tonnage, about 6,010.

Mr. F. E. Rebbeck, D.L., chairman of Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd., and President of the Shipbuilding Federation, presided at a luncheon following the launch. There were also present the Northern Ireland Minister of Finance, Mr. J. M. Andrews, D.L., and the Chairman of the Belfast Harbour Board, Sir Ernest Herdman, D.L.

COMPLIMENT TO PRESS

Mr. Maughan, proposing the toast of "Success to the Delane, and prosperity to the owners," said that the compliment that was being paid to The Times in naming the vessel after one of its famous editors was a compliment which was being paid through The Times to the Press as a whole.

Mr. F. H. Lowe, of Messrs. Lamport and Holt, Ltd., responding, said that it had always been their practice to name their vessels after people distinguished in literature, art and science.

Mr. F. E. Rebbeck, D.L., responding to the toast of "Messrs. Harland and Wolff," proposed by Mr. F. H. Lowe, managing director of the Lamport and Holt Line, said that the cost of ship repair and everything that the shipbuilder set his hand to had gone up, and it was time that the industry should say something. In connection with the remarks made by many prominent shipowners, when they said that prices had risen to such a level that they could not order any more ships, "I have to say," said Mr. Rebbeck, "that at the moment we cannot see any daylight of sufficient intensity to enable us to indicate that there is any prospect of reducing the price of ships." Shipbuilders' profits, he was aware, were of a very small percentage, nothing more than a bank rate, and they would be surprised if he told how small it is.

SMALL PROFITS

Shipowners said that prices were so high that they were looking for something enormous in the way of reduction, but if shipbuilders were to give all their profit and build ships for nothing more than they cost, it would be such a small reduction that owners would not order a ship.

Mr. Rebbeck added that they had invited the various sections of their team, including the men, to see if it is not possible to find some way of presenting a more attractive price, but there was little prospect of any worth while reduction taking place in what went into the ship.

He sometimes wondered haw long the deadlock was going to last, and there was a complete deadlock; no ships wordth talking about were being ordered anywhere in Britain. Orders were not being placed as they were eighteen months or a year ago, and it was not because they had enough ships. The mercantile marine was about 3,000 ships below its proper level, and yet they were face to face with a deadlock, and at the moment could not see the key which would unlock it.

CHEAP MONEY USELESS

"Cheap money," he said, "cannot get us anywhere unless we make a deal with our ship-owning friends. If ship-owners are at all inclined to take their courage in their hands and do a little bit of building at higher prices than those dictated by their own fancy, they will be doing a great national service, and they never will be able to get cheaper money than they can to-day."

All the Scandinavian yards were at work; all the German yards full up so that they could not take any more; the Italian yards fairly full, the French building their own ships, and, generally, there was going on in foreign yards a very wonderful degree of activity. He felt intensely concerned that in this way they should go on letting foreign countries build ships quite rapidly, while they were not building anything like as rapidly in proportion to their needs. There are going to be more foreign ships on the ocean and fewer British ships, he said, and asked where is that going to stop. Shipowners with a sense of their national heritage and shipbuilders with a sense of their national responsibility should somehow between themselves find ways and means to enable shipbuilding to proceed, and not let the deadlock go on, as it looked like doing at the moment.

At the close of his speech Mr. Rebbeck, on behalf of Messrs. Harland and Wolff, presented Mrs. Maughan with a diamond bracelet as a souvenir of the launch.

GRANGEGORMAN MENTAL HOSPITAL

NEW £42,000 NURSES' HOME

There were 3,623 patients in the Grangegorman and Portrane Mental Hospitals at 21st October—Grangegorman, 2,032 (794 men and 1,238 women); Portrane, 1,591 (961 men and 630 women). Compared with the same date last year the numbers in residence showed a decrease of 7 (a decrease of 13 men and an increase of 6 women).

Since the last monthly meeting 13 men and 30 women were admitted.

At yesterday's monthly meeting of the Joint Committee of the Mental Hospitals, at which Mr. M. Staines presided, a report from the Finance Committee stated that the accounts passed for payment were:—Ordinary accounts, £17,503 0s. 2d.; expenditure out of loans, £786 2s. 10d.—a total of £18,289 3s. 0d. The Committee were short by £2,342 7s. 8d. of the amount required to meet revenue account payments, but these payments included salaries, wages and pensions, which would not be due till 31st October. Meantime the City Treasurer had promised to lodge £10,000 to the Joint Committee's credit on 26th October.

The Wicklow County Council lodged to the Joint Committee's credit on the 9th inst. the sum of £9,968 10s.

The report was adopted.

A letter was received from the Department of Local Government and Public Health sanctioning the borrowing of a sum of £42,756 to cover (with contribution from the Hospitals' Fund) the erection of a nurses' home at Grangegorman, the amount to be borrowed from the Local Loans Fund, repayment to be spread over a period of thirty-five years, with interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum.

A young couple who had been keeping company for the past few months were found dead on the railway line near Berkhamsted, Herts. The girl was Marjorie Maydom, aged 15, a domestic servant, and the youth was Francis George Hill, aged 20. Both lived in the small village of Bourne End.

LAND OF CONTRASTS
That is one way of describing Australia: but it does less than justice to a strange and fascinating continent. Here are vast modern cities, ordered, bustling, gay; here, too, are huge, unpeopled, unexploited territories where the naked black fellow still hunts his food with stone axe and spear. Every year the band of English tourists to the Antipodes grows greater and greater. This year being Anniversary Year, the Orient Line offer special rates and special facilities for inclusive inland tours.

COMMUNISM AS A CRUSADE

ITS THREAT TO CHRISTIANITY

CHURCH MODERATOR ON MAN'S INDIFFERENCE

From Our Correspondent.

DERRY, Thursday.

THE Moderator of the General Assembly (the Right Rev. Dr. John Waddell) addressed the students at the opening of the session at Magee University College, Londonderry, to-day, when the President of Faculty (the Rev. Professor George Woodburn, M.A.) presided over a large attendance, including parents and friends.

The President said that new students were now their own masters and life itself was their teacher. They would be treated as men and not as school children. They would make or mar their own destiny.

The Moderator was welcomed by the President, who said that his visit always had been an event in their session.

"GHASTLY APATHY"

The Moderator, who was given a warm reception, delivered an interesting address entitled "The Appeal of Christianity to Strength." After dealing with Christ's appeal to men and virile youth, he referred to "men's criminal indifference in face of the wrongs of our economic order, their ghastly apathy to the threat of war, and all its horrors, as though this violation of every sacred law were inevitable." Then there was the question of private character. There were passionate supporters of the League of Nations, people who were interested in the rights of the child, a living wage for everybody, housing for the poor, and provision of work, who were apt to forget that duties take rank before rights and personal well-doing before setting the universe in order.

"In every man's life," said the Moderator, "there are two persons — one a hero and the other a coward. Christianity supports the hero." Every man was called to choose between the two. Christianity called on them to resist character-softening influences. It was a libel to say Christianity appealed to softness and comfort. Communism, which respectable citizens so much dreaded and detested, had in it a good deal of the crusade. Those Russian Bolshevists were on fire with a sacrificial zeal to build what seemed to them a just society. They cared more for their ideal of justice than many Christian folk did for any cause in the world. If the Communist worshipped Lenin, and the Nazi worshipped Hitler, surely they could not fail to feel the dynamics of the love of Christ.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

FUCHSIAS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

To obtain nice plants to flower next summer it is a good plan to propagate now. Secure good, sturdy cuttings and insert them in sandy soil, three or four around the rim of three-inch pots, placing these in a fairly warm propagating pit and watering gently, keeping them rather close until the roots being to show, when more air will be necessary. When well rooted, pot them singly into three-inch pots, using a compost of loam, leafmould, and a liberal quantity of sand, and stand them near the glass in an intermediate house, watering sparingly, just enough to keep them steadily growing.

DISPOSAL OF TURKEYS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

An experienced turkey producer known to us always begins to dispose of birds at the opening of the season, and continues, by rotation, to despatch small lots as they are fit. This producer says that in this way there is no danger of heavy losses should a slump set in at Christmas; by that time all except the late hatched or backward birds will have been marketed. In cases where rearers may have a prejudice against this piecemeal method and may desire to retain all the birds, in order to make one job of it and keep the money together, it is strongly recommended that they should at least separate the bigger from the smaller birds. Certainly this will have to be done if the latter are to have a fair deal. As often as not they are backward because of their timid nature when running with the more masterly birds, especially as in such circumstances they are usually victimised at the feeding troughs. Separate housing of some sort, even if it is only to partition off part of the turkey house, ought to be arranged. In this way they will at least be allowed to feed without molestation from the sturdier ones.
